STEPHENSON STILL MISSING; FRIENDS NOT SENT MESSAGE

Develops Blank Check Sent Wife From Monroe, Mich.

Clarence Stephenson, 40, head bookkeeper for The Eavey Co., wholesale grocers, who disappeared last Tuesday under mysterious circumstances, may be united with his wife in Detroit, Mich., friends here believe.

No word has been received in Xenia from any member of the family since Mrs. Stephenson and two children, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. James Andrews, sister and brother-in-law of Mrs. Stephenson, motored to Detroit, Thursday morning upon learning in a note received by the missing bookkeeper's wife that Detroit was her husband's ultimate destination.

Friends expressed the belief Friday that the reunion had probably been effected but had no information as to when the family would return to Xenia.

No motive for Stephenson's sudden departure from the city Tuesday at the peak of a storm after walking out of the company's office, has developed other than his own statement in a letter to his wife written from Monroe, Mich., that he was a "nervous wreck" and was probably suffering from a mental breakdown.

It was also revealed Friday that inclosed in Stephenson's letter to his wife was a blank check signed by the bookkeeper, leaving to his wife's discretion the amount of money she would need to tide over the family's finances until his return.

Friends in Xenia expect word from the Stephenson family in a few days at least. Friends believe he left Xenia to visit relatives in Detroit because of a nervous breakdown brought upon by work.

ANOTHER HEAT WAVE IS GRIPPING OHIO

COLUMBUS, July 9.—Another heat wave gripped Ohio today with the mercury rushing up in headlong fashion. However, weather conditions were for rain before nightfall.

Deaths in Ohio, due directly to the heat, numbered three today. One person was drowned in Cleveland, one near Fostoria and another in Zanesville.

Walter Haber, 14, Cleveland, was drowned while swimming in a lake. His companions were unable to save him and police recovered his body hours afterward.

The Rev. Father Benedict Burger, 28, assistant pastor at St. Wendelin's Catholic Church, Fostoria, was drowned while swimming at Catawba Island beach.

When he attempted to swim across the Muskegon River yesterday, Zanesville, Cavender Grayson, 17, was drowned.

John D. Hoag, 50, Cleveland was taken to a hospital after he suffered a heat stroke.

YOUTH IS EXECUTED FOR DOUBLE MURDER

COLUMBUS, O., July 9.—The state last night executed the life of William "Billy" Clark, 19-year-old Toledo and Cleveland youth in payment for the murder of Ralph and Dorothy Hoffman, farmers of near Fremont.

Clark remained stoically indifferent almost to the end. His only protest was lodged when prison guards strapped the death mask about his head. He smoked a cigarette until the moment before he was sent into eternity.

The current which took the youth's life was turned on at 8:56 p. m. Two minutes later he was pronounced dead and the body was removed to Toledo for burial.

Before he died, Clark admitted to Mark Irwin, prison evangelist, that he killed Hoffman and the latter's wife when they returned suddenly from Gibsonburg and found him looting their home.

OFFICIAL FOUND DEAD IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, O., July 9.—Malcolm Jennings, 63, executive secretary of the Ohio Manufacturers Association, was found dead in bed by his wife at his home here today.

Death resulted from heart trouble, according to physicians. Mrs. Jennings said her husband had been ill for several months. Jennings was a warm personal friend of the late President Harding and was with him on the Pacific Coast tour during which Harding died.

HALF OF CHICAGO POLICE ARE BOOTLEGGERS ATTORNEY SAYS

Counsel for Martin Durkin Charges Accused Killer Was in Connivance With Officers—Court In Uproar

CHICAGO, July 9.—Half of Chicago's police are in the bootlegging business, defense attorney, Eugene McGarry charged today in a brilliant appeal to the jury to acquit Martin Durkin.

"Why should Martin Durkin, a confessed bootlegger find it necessary to kill an officer when he had policemen on his bootlegging payroll and could obtain immunity from arrest with ease? McGarry asked the jury.

STATE EMERGENCY BOARD MUST DECIDE ON DETECTIVE BILL

Investigators of Abuse of State Autos Submit Bill

COLUMBUS, O., July 9.—The state emergency board next week will be called upon to decide whether it will pay a bill amounting to $7,320 for an "investigation" of state owned automobiles and their use.

The last Ohio senate authorized the "investigation" and the committee appointed to conduct it, headed by Senator Lowry Miller, of Middletown hired K. H. Heikes, Columbus, former penitentiary guard and private detective to obtain the information and data desired.

Heikes employed an assistant and has submitted a bill of $7,320 for salaries and expenses from April 15, to January 1, 1926. He is said to be still at work although no bill has been submitted for this year. So far he has been paid only $200. His first bill has been approved by Senator Miller. Miller, who last week, appeared before the board of control with his bill but was informed only $500 was available to the investigating committee.

Requesting an emergency appropriation of $3,000, Miller was told to submit an itemized statement before the emergency board would consider the request.

SEVENTEEN DEATHS

TOLEDO, O., July 9.—Seventeen violent deaths have been recorded in Toledo, within the past five days. Automobile accidents, drownings, fires and murders were contributory causes.

SMALL INCREASE IN TAX RATE PROVIDED UNDER 1927 BUDGET

Extraordinary Cuts Last Year Force Raise In Levies

Sum of $86,100 will be absorbed by the city next year in current municipal expenses and interest and sinking fund if the annual budget for 1927 submitted by City Manager S. O. Hale and adopted by City Commission Thursday night is approved as a whole by the County Budget Commission.

Should the budget be approved as presented, Xenia's 1927 tax rate will be 6.50 mills or $6.50 per $1,000 property valuation, an increase of fifty cents over the present rate of $6.

The 1927 budget is an increase of $15,200 over the 1926 amount granted for current running expenses. It is based on a total property valuation of $11,780,000.

If, as a result of the county-wide reappraisal of real estate now in progress, it is found the total tax duplicate for Greene County is increased, Xenia's proposed 1927 tax rate can be lowered without a decrease in the total budget requests. Manager Hale's budget estimate is based on current city expenses. The city manager has levied $27,000 in the public safety fund for 1927 an increase of $3,000 over this year.

According to the manager, the city ran short in the safety fund this year despite a transfer from the general fund which showed a good balance.

Unexpected needs arising forced the transfer and the city does not wish to be placed in a similar position next year through an insufficient levy.

Sum of $4,700 is asked for the general fund next year as compared to this year in which no levy was made in this department. By levying in this fund and increasing the levy in the safety fund, Manager Hale hopes city departments can operate smoothly within the budget in 1927.

The budget request in the interest and sinking fund for 1927 is $29,000, the same as in 1926. In the public health fund $1,400 is sought, also identical to this year's figure. Manager Hale only asks for $14,000 in the service fund for 1927, a reduction of $2,500 from this year's amount.

The rate for current expenses will be $4 per $1,000 valuation, which, added to the $2.50 rate for the interest and sinking fund, totals the $6.50 proposed rate.

The 1927 budget will be certified to County Auditor R. O. Wead to be submitted to the County Budget Commission, which is authorized by law to approve it in its entirety or make slices. However, as in past years, the budget is expected to stand approved as submitted.

SHOOTS WOMAN AND THEN KILLS HIMSELF

SALEM, O., July 9.—After shooting Mrs. Irene M. Shafer, 37, a divorcee today, Chester Stahl, 40, turned the gun on himself. He died instantly. Physicians said Mrs. Shafer is in a critical condition.

A quarrel preceded the tragedy according to police who said Stahl was a frequent visitor at the woman's home.

MINNEAPOLIS NEXT SCIOTO COUNTRY CLUB, COLUMBUS, O., July 9.—The United States Golf Association today voted to hold the 1927 National Amateur Golf Championships at Minneapolis Club, Minneapolis, Minn.

If the strike threat is made effective, leaders maintained that it would result in a tie-up of the subway and L. lines, the surface lines of the city and the lines of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Company, entering Manhattan.

SERIOUS COMMUNAL DISORDERS OCCUR

ALLAHABAD, July 9.—Serious communal disorders in which Moslem mobs looted and burned Hindu villages and bazaars in various localities within an area of 500 square miles around Pabna were reported today.

The disorders were reported spreading. Police and military reinforcements were rushed to the disturbed areas.

Judge Todhunter was known throughout the state. He was prominent in political circles and at one time published a newspaper.

AMERICA IS NATION OF FLIVVER Gypsies TENT CROWD LEARNS

Chautauqua Audience Told To Buy at Home By Editor

"Great overpopulated cities with an undigested population are the greatest menace to any nation," declared Charles H. Plattenburg, Iowa newspaper editor, addressing a large first night crowd on the Xenia Redpath Chautauqua program, Thursday night. His subject was "The Modern Tale of Two Cities."

"To build communities fit for people to live in is the great task today," he continued. "We don't need large populations, although the size makes little difference if the quality of its citizenship is of a high order."

"God save America if we haven't anything to depend upon but New York and Chicago."

"There have been forty great civilizations on this earth. They are all dead from one disease, and we have that disease. We are by no means the first civilization and no different from the rest."

"Why have I figured it up and there are fifteen automobiles to one bath tub in Iowa alone and I'd far rather take the bath tub as an index to civilization than the auto."

"The history of one nation is the history of all. Each started as a small village and with the farmers coming to great cities, leaving the traditions and religion of their fathers for the city's vices. Man has ever exploited people and we are traveling along the same line."

It has come to a point today where when we go auto riding we leave the family Bible at home and take along the thermos bottle instead.

"America today has become a nation of flivver gypsies—always on the go."

"We must take care of the small villagers who come to the cities"

COLLEGIATE AIR SURROUNDS GOLF TOURNEY

SCIOTO COUNTRY CLUB, COLUMBUS, O., July 9.—Strolling about the spacious clubhouse and extensive grounds of the Scioto Country Club, where the "cream" of America's golfers are striving to wrest the title from Willie McFarlane one is surprisingly aware of the fact that it presents a collegiate atmosphere.

In the first place, George M. "Red" Troutman, impresario and guiding genius of the tournament, when he is not away managing this, that and the other, is assistant director of athletics at Ohio State University. James E. (or Jimmy as he is usually called) Pollard, who presides over the destiny of

CHICAGO PRO TURNS IN EVEN FOURS WHEN ON SECOND ATTEMPT

Leaders Scores 36 Going Out—Is Hard Pressed

SCIOTO COUNTRY CLUB, COLUMBUS, O., July 9.—Fighting to retain the lead which he established over the field in the National Open Championship by a brilliant sixty-eight on the first day Wild Bill Mehlhorn of Chicago went out in thirty-six, even par today.

The Chicago pro was not accurate nor as lucky as on Thursday morning but with the knowledge that several of the other leaders were pressing him closely he fought every minute and reached the turn in even fours.

SCIOTO COUNTRY CLUB, COLUMBUS, O., July 9.—Spurred by the terrific pace set by "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, the Chicago pro, the nation's premier golfers set out this morning for the second round of the national open golf championship.

Mehlhorn's 68, garnered yesterday over the first 18 holes was two better than the cards turned in by Bobby Jones, the American amateur and British Open title holder and John Junor, Portland, Ore., who at the last moment loomed as a formidable contender.

Only one stroke behind Jones and Junor's 70's was Al Espinosa, Chicago and Joe Turnesa, New York, who collected 71's one stroke better than Willis MacFarlane, the defending champion who turned in a par score of 72 after a sensational game.

MacFarlane went into a four way tie for fourth place when Pat Doyle, Leo Diegal and J. G. Collins, the latter, a Kokomo, Ind., dark horse returned with par cards.

Today's play will be over eighteen holes and tomorrow the sixty golfers with the best scores will battle over 36 holes for the championship.

A terrifically hot sun untempered by a breeze and accented by the parched turf, greeted the starters as they teed off this morning.

Although Mehlhorn's round yesterday equalled the course record, he cannot afford to slip today, golf experts declared pointing out that two strokes is no great handicap for Bobby Jones. Little is known of Junor, who came in at dusk, minus the huge gallery that followed Jones, Mehlhorn, MacFarlane and other champions or ex-champions. Many eyes today were on Walter Hagen who scored a 73 yesterday, after a series of bad slips and plenty of hard luck. Other scores ranged from 75 to 90.

Another of the bitter fights which have marked the Shipping Board since it was founded led up to the board's action in accepting the resignation which is exacted from Crowley, when he took the job several months ago.

Crowley's predecessor, Leigh Palmer, was ousted in just such a summary a manner, although he was opposed by anti-administration members, while Crowley was removed by administration supporters.

Vice Chairman E. C. Plummer and Commissioner Benson supported Crowley in his statement that he functioned efficiently and saved about $5,000,000 in his nine months of service. Crowley opposed the sale of the five ships of the Admiral Oriental line to R. Stanley Dollar for $4,500,000.

Dalton has been in the army since 1889. He was awarded the distinguished service medal for his work in supervising the entire American transport service during the world war.

TO APPEAL VERDICT IN HEART BALM SUIT

COLUMBUS, O., July 9.—The verdict of a federal court jury awarding $8,000 heart balm to Miss Mayne Taggart, 47, Chicago, from Frank Figlestadler, former Chillicothe, Ohio, realtor, probably will be appealed, Figlestadler's attorneys indicated today.

The verdict was returned late yesterday after several days testimony in which Miss Taggart declared Figlestadler promised to marry her, but rebuffed her for another woman after he had quit a lucrative position.

Wrecking of the line on Detroit St. has already begun beguiling tearing down the trolley wires.

WOMAN KILLED

WARREN, O., July 9.—A woman was killed and four persons were injured when a street car and an automobile collided here during the night. Mrs. Hattie Wood, Youngstown, was killed. Those injured were Lynn Yonker, Youngstown; James Young, Greenford; Mrs. Emma Simms, Youngstown, and William Bell, Salsenville.

REPORT FIGHTING ALONG FRONTIER

ATHENS, July 9.—Isolated fighting was reported today from the Rumanian-Bulgarian frontier where ten Rumanian soldiers were reported to have been killed.

The death of one Rumanian gendarme in a frontier skirmish with Bulgarians was announced yesterday in Bucharest. The jealousies of the Balkans, especially with regard to the post-war division of territory and new frontiers, have caused a series of bloody incidents along virtually every Balkan border at one time or another since 1918.

CROWLEY PROTESTS REMOVAL AS CHIEF OF MERCHANT FLEET

Dalton Has Succeeded To Position After Bitter Fight

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Brig. Gen. A. C. Dalton, wartime superintendent of the job of transporting the soldiers to France, went to work today as the director of the huge government merchant fleet while his predecessor, as president of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, E. E. Crowley, alleged he was ousted "without reason" by the U. S. Shipping Board.

Another of the bitter fights which have marked the Shipping Board since it was founded led up to the board's action in accepting the resignation which is exacted from Crowley, when he took the job several months ago.

Crowley's predecessor, Leigh Palmer, was ousted in just such a summary a manner, although he was opposed by anti-administration members, while Crowley was removed by administration supporters.

PRIEST DROWNS AT OUTING OF BOYS

CATAWBA ISLAND, O., July 9.—Authorities today resumed their search for the body of the Rev. Father Benedict L. Burger, assistant pastor of St. Wendelin's Church, Fostoria, who drowned at Geni Beach near here late yesterday.

Father Burger was swimming with a score of Fostoria boys—youths from his parish whom he had taken on an outing—when he suddenly floundered in the water and sank.

"Oh, my back," the priest shouted as he disappeared.

The tragedy occurred at 6 p. m. and authorities immediately began dragging the water. Efforts to locate the body had proved futile at midnight and the search was abandoned, until today.

REMOVE FIRST BODY FROM WRECKED SHIP FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Sailors Enter Hull Of S-51 In Search For Remains

NAVY YARD, BROOKLYN, N. Y., July 9.—The submarine S-51 today began to give up its dead. Soon after noon a slow moving morgue wagon, a marine guard seated beside the driver and a motorcycle policeman preceding drew up to the Naval Hospital morgue here and from it carried the first body recovered from the interior of the wrecked submersible. There was no announcement of identification, if any had been made.

NAVY YARD, BROOKLYN, N. Y., July 9.—Through the slimy water-soaked interior of the salvaged submarine S-51 naval enlisted men, the crew of the sister ship S-50 searched for the bodies of their hero friends and one-time comrades today.

Clad in black slickers and south-western, ten picked submarine sailors, knowing every inch of the dark passages and companionways because the ship's build is identical with their own craft, entered the hull when it was forced open in dry dock here. They carried white canvas sea bags to collect the effects of the dead.

Just before the ship was unsealed, Rear Admiral Plunkett, yard commandant, ordered all civilians from the yard. There was a pathetic scene at the gate as a young woman, dressed in deep mourning, sought permission to remain and view the removal of the bodies. She gave her name as Miss B. L. Garrett, and declared that she had been the sweetheart of Robert S. Willis, torpedo man, first class, of Norfolk, who died with the sinking of the ship. He had only a week to serve in the navy, when he died, she said.

Again and again the girl pleaded with the marines on guard to read him her, but was refused.

POLICE KILL YOUTH ATTEMPTING HOLD UP

IRONTON, O., July 9.—Trapped by police who had been apprised three bandits were holding up motorists on a highway near here, Albert Stevens, 25, was shot to death last night and his two companions, Charles, 23, his brother and Gerald Griffin, former Ohio State University student, were captured.

After receiving reports of a series of holdups, police drove to a spot near the scene and parked. Fifteen minutes elapsed, officers declared, when Stevens, with a drawn gun, leaped onto the running board of their car and commanded the officers to raise their hands. The officers responded with a volley of shots, killing Stevens instantly.

Charles and Griffin were captured after a chase which lasted into the early hours today.

Before fleeing the bandits fired on the officers, according to the officers. Griffin is said to be the son of a prominent Ironton dairyman.

WILL BOYISH BOB TAKE PLACE OF PERMANENT? SCRIBE THINKS SO

Popularity of the permanent wave is on the wane, a survey of beauty parlor business shows. Its place in the desire of the girls is being taken by the boyish bob while the straight hair design is also in vogue.

Trouble with the "permanent" is that it is not always permanent, particularly in hot weather when it's life is of but short duration, it is said.

The boyish bob's popularity is growing day by day because it is convenient, looks particularly well after a swim and needs so much less care and attention.

Charles Nessler, inventor of the "permanent," declares "it's the men that put the crimp in the permanent wave. They ridiculed it, made funny pictures about it, in comic sections and wives out of it when the idea was first advanced. Even now, they're the man objectors I believe."

Permanent waving was really invented in 1905, but was not worked out primarily as a way of making the hair curly. It was simply a form of treatment for oily hair. Mr. Nessler having observed that curly hair was not usually oily. He figured that if he could make straight hair curl for any length of time, then excessive oiliness might be cured. He was surprised when, in time, women began getting these long-lasting waves for the wave itself and not to cure a scalp condition.

"What permanent waving does," says Mr. Nessler, "is to change the character of the hair so that it absorbs humidity. That's the secret of curliness. I believe most people have the tendency toward natural curliness washed out of their hair by too frequent washing when they're young. That's why, I think, you see so many curly heads in poor parts of town and so much straight hair among the well cared for children of the rich."

Mr. Nessler says any one can have a permanent wave, but he warns that certain types of hair need special precautions. Women with bleached or white hair, or with hair which has been subjected to a great many lemon rinses are likely to get fuzzy waves. The heat also tends to turn white hair yellow.

Hair which has been treated with chemical hair dyes may change color under the effect of the permanent wave. The best thing to do, he advises if a woman has one of these special types of hair and wishes to get a permanent wave, is to make an agreement with the operator to wave a sample of the hair before the whole head is done.

inflicted by C. B. Blackmore, 50, co-tenant on the farm, June 30, is recovering rapidly. She is able to sit up a part of each day and the wounds are healing perfectly, according to Dr. M. I. Marsh, Cedarville, her physician.

Blackmore, who confessed to the attack, is lodged in the County Jail. He pleaded guilty to a charge of cutting with intent to kill before R. O. Copsey, justice of the peace and was bound over to the grand jury under $2,000 bond. Blackmore is said to have told authorities he "lost his head" in a fit of anger, after requesting the return of money he had placed in Mrs. Smith's keeping.

ECHOES FROM WORLD

I. N. T. A. CONGRESS.
Mrs. Emma Zell, 613 S. Detroit St., opened her home Wednesday evening to eighty of her friends and neighbors, including a class of psychology, the McGervey Bible Class, and a number from Dayton, with Dr. W. V. Nicum, president of the Southern Ohio I. N. T. A., when she gave a splendid talk of what she heard and saw at the recent congress in New York City, June 20-27 at Hotel Commodore.

Mrs. Zell touched on the splendid talks and music of the convention, which included a number by the McDowell Sisters, Dallas, Tex. A "peace conference" was also held and an unusual feature of the program was a "parliament of religions" in which twelve different creeds were represented. Each representative, with seven foreigners in native garb, described what their religion meant to them.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

Countless girls and women now know how foolish and needless it is to "purge" and "physic" themselves to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, sallow skin, colds, or sour, gassy stomach.

They have found that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin helps to establish natural bowel "regularity" even for those heretofore chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it never gripes, sickens or upsets the most delicate girl or woman. Besides, it is ab-

RHYME BUT NO REASON

The girl who today treads the aisle to the tune of the wedding march observes certain marriage rites so old that the original reasons for their existence are forgotten.

Her wedding veil, for instance, is a relic of the canopy that was formerly held over the bride to seclude her from profane gaze. The ancient Romans attached great importance to the custom of veiling the bride, the principal object being to protect her from the evil eye, a superstition current among many tribes and races. Among other early peoples the glance of a bride spelled misfortune for the one meeting it, unless it happened to be the bridegroom, so the bridal veil was acquired.

The custom of wearing a previously worn bridal veil is believed to have originated with Roman brides who supposed good luck to attend those wed in a veil previously worn to the altar.

That the wedding ring was originally a mark of ownership, evidence that the wearer was the property of her husband, is a fact well known in this day of equal suffrage and the new freedom for women. Today the ring is but a symbol of marriage.

One might enumerate ad infinitum the instances where once significant customs survive today as meaningless ceremonies or are observed for reasons having no relation to the cause of their origin in antiquity.

Today's Talk

PERFUMED HILLS

For some days now I have been looking into the faces of marvelous hills, many of them grown in garbs so regal that they beggared all description in words.

Some touched the sea and received the daily reach of its waves and soothing song at night time. Some stood lonely out in the desert with drab gowling, but often dotted, like a woman's hand, with the rarest gems in colored flowers. Tall, white conical flowers, blue and purple and red in all shapes and forms.

I have stood in the cool of the evening and breathed in the perfume of these beautiful hills, and during the day from trains have been uplifted as well.

To many, I know, hills are just hills. But to many of us they are the movements of thoughts, solid, roaming, silent, full of dreams, and poetry.

The other evening I followed a sunset playing hide and seek with a chain of these hills. At one time a storm arose in the distance and it looked for a little while as though the sunset would go to sleep in a blanket of gray. But soon the storm shifted and left as gorgeous a pink and purple sky as I have ever seen. I put my head out of my hotel window and lived out there in that beauty.

I always think of these hills and ranges as perfumed in the same way. I have come to associate the delicate perfume of the flowers with the perfect and exacting dress of refined women.

You cannot say much in the presence of great hills. No two are ever alike. No two talk the same language. Yet they are all related in the closest bonds.

When I climb a hill I feel as though I am embracing something that is a part of me—something mysterious, something divine.

LEEDS CELEBRATES THREE HUNDREDTH BIRTHDAY WITH CARNIVAL AND FAIR

LEEDS, Yorkshire, July 9 (UP)—The tercentenary celebration of Leeds opened this morning with a great parade.

Streets and buildings are gaily decorated with flags and bunting and most business houses and mills are closed for the great days.

It was on July 13, 1626 that Charles I granted a charter of incorporation to Leeds after on inquiry into complaints of maladministration. The thirteenth will be the big day of the celebration, but the carnival will continue through the eighteenth.

Many thousands of visitors from neighboring towns and cities and tourists have arrived to help Leeds in its birthday party. The Government is represented by Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, president of the Board of Trade, and Lord Eustace Percy, president of the Board of Education. The Earl of Crawford, president of the London Society of Antiquaries, is also here.

A great industrial exhibition has opened in the town hall, and in addition there is an "Old Leeds" exhibition. In the program every phase of the city's life will find illustration. A series of historical pageants will tell the story of the city's growth, and at night historical plays will be given in the Theatre Royal. The city is prepared to receive a million visitors and there will be much fun with the lighter carnival attractions.

Everywhere may be seen the city's slogan, "Leeds Leeds." While the past is being used as an educational background, many of the displays look to the future and a greater city.

Leeds was a tiny village in the days when the Romans made York their capital before London. Its important clothing trade had an almost equally ancient origin in the hand looms of the farmer clothier. At the time of the first charter these farmers and cottagers would bring their bales of cloth on pack horses every Tuesday morning for the sale that they conducted on the bridge. A peculiarity of this trading is that it would begin on the striking of a bell, that it was conducted in silence and was terminated quickly. The people of Leeds point to this as an explanation of why they do business so rapidly and with little flattery.

Leeds was lucky to be out of the invader's track and therefore escaped the ravages of war, whether in the raids of Saxons or Normans or in the civil war clashes. The tradespeople prospered in a quiet way until the invention of a spiral is broken it may be replaced.

The national spring is built up of sections of wire, with strong springs at the end of each line of sections to give tension. This type of spring may be repaired, when badly stretched or sagged, by having the wire sections or the end-springs renewed.

The woven wire is the cheapest kind of spring, and it cannot be renewed when sagged, although it can be repaired in a measure by having lengths of wire secured to it here and there to strengthen the mesh.

CHOOSING A BED

"What kind of beds shall I choose for our new little home?" writes a Bride-to-Be.

That all depends upon how much time you wish to devote to caring for them! The easiest kind of bed to keep clean is the enamel iron bed—but few housekeepers choose it in preference to the beautiful polished wood bed or the lustrous and gleaming brass bed.

Brass beds are covered with lacquer before leaving the factory, and this keeps them from tarnishing—as long as the lacquer remains on, making it necessary only to wipe the brass surface with a dampened camolis or cheesecloth duster. When the lacquer wears off, however, the exposed brass surfaces will require polishing, and should be relacquered. Wooden beds, of course, demand constant polishing. Whereas the sturdy enameled iron bed may be scrubbed and scoured and dusted without much thought or special care. For this reason—that they are easily cared for—many women choose iron beds for their homes and then paint them in colors to match the color scheme of their bedroom hangings, thus making them appear much daintier than if left plain white. A good metal bed should have welded corners, no sign of a tube being scamed, and firm joints. Bedsteads of all kinds are generally six feet, three inches in length and four feet, six inches in width for full-size, and three feet—sometimes two feet, six inches—for couch size. Couch beds are the least expensive and as the day couch is much sat upon, one should make sure that it has strong springs which will not sag under the constant strain.

Springs: A box spring is the most expensive kind. It is made of spiral springs with a padding like a thin mattress laid on the spirals, then the whole covered by ticking. This makes the warmest type of bed and is more comfortable than any other kind of spring, but is more difficult to keep clean than the national or the woven wire spring.

The spiral spring is another very comfortable type. It is composed of a set of vertical wire spirals, like those used in upholstered furniture, each spring set in a wood or metal base. When

DOG SAVES LIVES OF ITS MASTERS

ZANESVILLE, O., July 9—Both Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Martins, who reside on a farm south of Bridgeville, owe their lives to their shepherd dog. While Martin was milking one of his cows, the animal stampeded and attacked his wife. Martin was also attacked and both were down on the barn floor with the cow trying to gore them when the dog rushed in and drew the animal's attention away from them long enough for them to flee to safety.

CEDARVILLE LIBRARY

Public library of Cedarville is one of the many thousands of libraries in the United States which have come into existence through the generosity of Andrew Carnegie. Cedarville College united with the village and township in a joint appeal for the donation, as a result Carnegie made a gift, contingent as all his gifts of a similar nature are, upon the receipt of the donation, guaranteeing a maintenance fund of ten per cent of the amount given.

Cedarville Twp. bought the lot and the title to it, as well as to the building, was subsequently vested in the college. However, the township owns the books and pays for all additions to the library.

The township also maintains the library by a direct tax amounting to about $1,400 annually, this about paying the librarian and janitor and heating the building. The township also pays $150 a year toward the upkeep of the building and grounds.

The library was opened in 1908 with appropriate ceremonies. Township trustees appoint the library board.

TODAY

We think of time in years, yet in today

Joy comes and goes and honor lives or dies.

What is to be when next the sun shall rise,

Save death and sorrow, is our own to say,

This morning's deed shall shape tomorrow's way.

In this brief act the life-long future lies,

Now we are judged as foolish men or wise,

Worthy of trust or reeds temptations away.

The day is all-important, for the years

Are but a sheaf of days which time reaps in;

So stand you fast against the world's harsh sneers.

Be true today—the future's faith you win,

In this brief hour of trial splendor lies—

Today your honor either lives or dies.

Severe sunburn

caused intense pain

Skin so sore could not touch it

Resinol heals

Seven Mile, Ohio, Feb. 13—"I am a farmer and am out-of-doors all my working hours. During harvest time last year, I became badly sunburned about the face, neck and arms. They were so irritated and pained so intensely I could hardly stand anything touching them. I tried various remedies, but nothing did me any good until I tried Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. I was relieved by the first application and by the time the first jar of ointment and cake of soap were gone my sunburn had vanished. I am always a booster for Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment." Crashing the gate for a total of thirty-three hits in the two Independence Day holiday tilts over the week-end, the Xenia Reserves sent their team batting average for the season soaring to the .328 mark at the same time extending their winning streak to four games.

WITNESS IS FOUND IN M'PHERSON CASE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 9.—An eye witness of the purported kidnapping of Almee Semple McPherson was produced today by the evangelist. He is Harry C. Swift, who claims he saw Mrs. McPherson thrown into an auto near the Nevada bath-house on the afternoon of May 18 and whisked away by two men and a woman.

Swift's story may be told to the Los Angeles County grand jury when it reconvenes next Tuesday.

BETTING ON HORSES IS BEST AMUSEMENT FOR GREAT BRITAIN

LONDON, July 9.—Betting on horse races is Britain's greatest amusement.

In the pursuit of that amusement, the Government estimates that $940,000,000 changes hands every year.

One-tenth of this, the Government has reason to believe, changes hands literally in street betting, which is illegal; the other nine-tenths, or around about $850,000,000 is race course or "credit betting" and is perfectly legal.

When the new tax of five per cent on all "legal" betting goes into effect on November 1st, the hard-pressed British Treasury will rake in at least $30,000,000.

This is $1,000,000 more revenue than the Treasury gets from all the theatres and movie palaces in Great Britain.

It is $7,200,000 more revenue than the Treasury gets from the licenses issued to all places where alcoholic liquors are consumed.

Practically all the leading clubs in Great Britain, except the American Woman's Clubs in Grosvenor street, and its British sister the Lyceum Club on Piccadilly, have been obliged to install tickers so that the members may learn at the earliest possible moment the results from Epsom or Ascot or Newmarket or Goodwood. All hotels and theatres post the results as a matter of course. On the other hand, there has never been any demand for the installation of tickers covering stock exchange transactions.

Women in England, Wales and Scotland have discovered that they can pleasantly eke out their "pin money" by the judicious investment of that odd household shilling which nobody misses, and they are believed to be the solid support of street betting. They have staunch allies in the milkman, the butcher's boy and the itinerant street vendor of flowers; these worthies accept the domestic shilling wrapped in a piece of paper containing simply the household address "11 Belsize Lane" and the name of the horse that is "fancied," say "Sonatina." If Sonatina wins at 5 to 1, then he good housewife receives that very same afternoon her original shilling and five shillings more. If she loses, she probably says nothing much about it.

It is this widespread household betting which has driven even the sternest non-conformist newspapers to carry racing information. They all now have their own expert, their own "tipsters"; within certain limits a successful forecaster can do wonders for an English newspaper's circulation, far more than any newspaper cartoonist.

Even the Socialist Daily Herald is said to owe much of its very considerable circulation to the widespread belief in shops, factories and mines that its racing expert who writes under the somewhat aristocratic nom de plume of "Templegate" is an absolute wizard at "picking the winners."

In addition, several dozen racing sheets appear to make a living by the dissemination of "absolutely reliable" information and astute suggestions.

It is perfectly legal to send an open telegram to a bookmaker, or a postcard, or a letter, containing your bet; it is perfectly legal to call him up on the telephone and "place" your bet; it is perfectly legal to meet him or any other bookmaker on the race course and there and then bet with him as to which horse will win, or which will come in one, two, three. All this the courts have declared to be perfectly legal. It is known as "credit betting"—that is, betting against a credit account—or "race course betting."

Jap Student Invents Radio Movie

Hiroshi Ando, a student of Waseda University in Tokyo, has successfully completed his experiments with a radio movie. The youthful inventor is seen here with a part of his apparatus, by which scenes photographed in one city may be projected on the screen in another.

In addition, several dozen racing sheets appear to make a living by the dissemination of "absolutely reliable" information and astute suggestions.

It is perfectly legal to send an open telegram to a bookmaker, or a postcard, or a letter, containing your bet; it is perfectly legal to call him up on the telephone and "place" your bet; it is perfectly legal to meet him or any other bookmaker on the race course and there and then bet with him as to which horse will win, or which will come in one, two, three. All this the courts have declared to be perfectly legal. It is known as "credit betting"—that is, betting against a credit account—or "race course betting."

It is this widespread household betting which has driven even the sternest non-conformist newspapers to carry racing information. They all now have their own expert, their own "tipsters"; within certain limits a successful forecaster can do wonders for an English newspaper's circulation, far more than any newspaper cartoonist.

Even the Socialist Daily Herald is said to owe much of its very considerable circulation to the widespread belief in shops, factories and mines that its racing expert who writes under the somewhat aristocratic nom de plume of "Templegate" is an absolute wizard at "picking the winners."

In addition, several dozen racing sheets appear to make a living by the dissemination of "absolutely reliable" information and astute suggestions.

Sunday School Lessons

By FRANKLIN PARKER
CHILDHOOD AND EDUCATION
OF MOSES

GOLDEN TEXT: Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it. Proverbs 22:6.

LESSON TEXT: Exodus 2:1-10; Acts 7:18-22; Hebrews 11:23-24.

TIME: The birth of Moses is set down by Prof. Beecher at B. C. 1578.

PLACE: The location of the lesson is not given, "perhaps Tanis (Zoan) one of the chief royal residences in the northeast of the Delta, near the mouth of the Tanitic branch of the Nile, is intended."

INTRODUCTION: God in His wisdom raises up a great man to carry on any great work that He has in mind for humanity. Israel has spent sufficient time in Egypt. God has trained His people so that they are capable of being raised to a higher plane. The people have suffered and God has heard its cry for help and deliverance. It takes a personage big enough to deliver them according to His idea. Moses is born, who is one of the largest characters of the Bible. First we find him helpless, a babe, in a basket, in the river, so that he will not be harmed by the Egyptians who tried, in vain, to prevent the Hebrew from multiplying. The babe shall grow and rule all coming generations from Sinai. Here we witness Providence play around this infant.

A NEW BABE: Even in Israel's suffering and oppression the spark of love was bright and here a man and woman, both of the tribe of Levi, were married and to them came a babe, a son, fair and good to look upon. The world would die if love should be removed entirely. The names of this pair play a big part in God's plan, but the fruits of their love, their babe, will play one of the most important parts in history, in the world. Parents may be humble before the world but who knows what the offspring may bring to the world for God, as a part of His great program of life here and eternal. A babe in the home raises the love and home life to a much higher plane, toward God and His throne where He must keep his every ready supply of little blessings. God be thanked for the little ones and happy should the man be who has of them.

2. DANGER FACES THE BABE: Pharaoh had failed the step of the stem of Hebrew population in its multiplication by oppression so he issued a decree that all the male children should be killed at birth. Herod became a murderer of the innocents, even today in some heathen countries they slaughter the babes. One of the mysteries and tragedies of life is the fact that a home may be Christian in spirit and training, yet every child is exposed to danger and destruction through disease and vice, as it grows.

3. A MOTHER'S PLAN OF SAFETY: One can imagine the love and passion with which his mother would clasp the son, born since the decree, to her bosom, and how she would plan to save him from that terrible thing murder. Her motherly instinct and devotion promptly came into play. She hid him in her home for three months and at that time she realized it was no longer safe to hide him thus. She made a cradle of ark of bullrushes and lined it with pitch and took it to the river Nile and placed the little basket laden with its precious cargo, in the water among the rushes along the shore. She slowly went to her home with all faith in God to save her babe for her. We do not know by what means she expected God to save him but she believed, and her faith was rewarded. She had served God for His guidance and He accepted her gift, her babe, and at once started upon a plan to use that gift. How much God can use the different gifts that we are capable of giving Him, self, talent, money, etc. We must ask God to come into our homes and help us protect our loved ones from all danger that lurks around today. We should train our children after the plan of God (leave them to His guidance and He will not fail and have them put on the armour of God and they will be safe.

4. ROYALTY APPEARS: Providence now steps to the river, in that the daughter of Pharaoh, and her maidens appear at the river to bathe. She saw the queer little basket and sent her maid to bring it to her. To her surprise she found it a babe, which was crying. Could any of us refuse a babe that was crying its appeal to us. Her heart was touched, the same as your heart and mine would have been touched. She was too human and kind to fulfill her evil father's decree. Her heart was stronger than her father's hand. In startling and wonderful ways does God accomplish His purpose. Pharaoh tried to exterminate the Hebrews and his own daughter disobeyed his will and was the instrument through whom they were delivered, with the consent of God. We cannot hope to fight God and win. We do not always know just what God will do with us, and in His plans, but it behooves us to permit Him to guide us completely. Save the children because they may be the means of saving us, in the plans and hands of God.

5. HIS SISTER'S THOUGHTFULNESS: A little sister's love was the next step in God's plan, as she stepped forward and suggested that she be permitted to go and get a nurse for the tiny babe, of the Hebrew woman. She had lingered to see what would become of her baby brother after her mother had deposited him there. The royal lady realized her helplessness in caring for the babe and she consented, whereupon the girl brought her own mother, that of the babe. Children still help God carry on His great plans of salvation. Children are exceedingly valuable in the sight of God.

6. BABE RESTORED TO MOTHER: She is to be paid for the caring for her babe for the royal princess, even in the face of the king's decree. Pharaoh's God is working so we need have no fear. His mother is to teach and train him in spirit and prayer, and thus mold him into a great character and destiny. Abraham Lincoln, said, "All that I am, I owe to my angel mother. When God needs a great man he created a great mother. When he was grown she brought him to Pharaoh's daughter, by request, and he became her son. This Hebrew boy received an Egyptian name and began his life in the court. He became learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians. Great men are armed with the power of thought. He was fitted for God's work. Like we fit our children to do God's will in this vast and great world."

SCHOOL OF METHODS SCHEDULED AT CAMP GROUNDS IN AUGUST

Announcement was made today that the annual School of Methods of the Young People's Union of the Ohio Annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church will be held on the camp grounds at Sabina, August 9 to 15.

Protestant tells of eucharistic congress recently

An interesting article on the recent Eucharistic Congress of the Catholic Church in Chicago is contained in the July 8 issue of The Christian Century. Protestant in-tendominion magazine.

Paul Hutchinson, managing editor, under the title of "Rome comes to Chicago," give a graphic account of the huge conclave, painting a dramatic picture of scenes during the assemblage. In part, he said:

"Perhaps, after all, Rome never changes. Perhaps her boast, semper idem, is justified. You climb into your automobile and are whirled for miles over paved highways, patrolled by policemen mounted on motorcycles. Or you make the same journey in cars propelled at blinding speed by the electric trolley rail. And at the end of your journey you meet Rome—

Rome shepherding her flock along another paved highway, with cross-surmounted electric light-posts every twenty-five feet—but the old Rome, with her banners and her chants and her procession of the sacred host, making pilgrimage still beneath the forest shade.

Look for ten minutes, and your heart can see nothing of this twentieth century, but rather such a sight as Chaucer might have looked on when his pilgrims met the chanting faithful emerging from the glades about Canterbury.

"Or you scurry across the traffic-crowded street of a booming city in a new world, skirt the debris of an engineering adventure in electrification, enter a stadium still glistening white in its newness, mark the microphones and the amplifiers and the flood-lights and all the other signs of a new day. And then, into the midst of this massed modernity, there marches the grave circumstance of the princes of the church, each with his attendants, contributing his part to a pageantry of old. And before you know it every trace of what is new has faded from your vision, and you are standing with the multitude to shout, 'Mundelein! Mundelein! Much as the burghers of Constance must have shouted for a passing cardinal five long centuries ago.

"It is an amazing thing, this power of Rome to come into a totally new alien circumstance and so quickly to overwhelm it with her ancient symbolism. Had you not seen it done, you would not have believed its possibility. Surely, if anywhere, Chicago is the last place on earth to respond to any ritual conducted in an unknown, dead tongue. Chicago is a place of steel and mortar rising out of the fecund, black prairie soil. And Rome is a thing of symbols and mysteries and the evasive of an old and far-off day. There is nothing subtle about Chicago, there is nothing obvious about Rome. If Chicago has ever had a spiritual baptism, it has been the baptism of the circuit-riding, the revival meeting, the mourner's bench. Yet Rome has shown her power to compel the awe of Chicago. And who could have escaped that influence?"

The writer then describes the special service for the Holy Name Society in the stadium, when only men were present, and the impressiveness of the massed singing and of the lighted candles at the blessing. He then describes the scene at Mundelein on the closing day of the Congress, the Mass celebrated for the multitude and the procession with the Blessed Sacrament, un-interrupted by the storm that drove pilgrims to shelter.

The GILDED ROSE

by May Christie

LEADING CHARACTERS IN THE STORY:

ROSILYN PAGE, the hard-worked daughter of a Long Island innkeeper, finds herself on his death, heiress of a huge fortune. She is deeply in love with

LANDIS RIDGEWAY, a charming young fellow in financial difficulties, who visited the inn regularly for ten years and was always kind to the lonely girl. His heart has been broken by the faithlessness of

LYDIA HARBROOK, beautiful and utterly heartless woman of the world who is planning to marry

STEVIE VAN VORST, a wealthy old roue, although she is fond of Landis.

MRS. FLORENCE RIDGEWAY, Landis' mother fearing poverty invites Rosilyn to visit her and her son, and induces Landis to marry Rosilyn, although he loathes himself for taking her advice. Immediately after the ceremony, Rosilyn overhears the gossip in which she learns that Landis has married her for her money—she hears herself spoken of as the Gilded Rose. Heartbroken, she prepares to leave on her wedding journey.

Lydia Harbrook meanwhile is in Paris, revelling in a glorious spring day.

CHAPTER 15

Lydia's Adorers
BEAUTIFUL lady, I am desolated by your silence," gallantly murmured the Vicomte at Lydia's side as they rode together in the Bois. "Of what, pray, are you thinking so intently?"

Lydia flashed her enchanting smile at the infatuated boy. Once married to Van Vorst, the Vicomte still would be her cavalier, she knew. Really the French were much more sensible in these matters than the English-speaking people.

"I was thinking that if I'd lived a century or two ago, I'd have been a du Barry or a Pompadour! The role of King's favourite would have fitted me exactly. Money, Power, Position, Honor, I could want nothing more of life."

The Vicomte moved his chestnut mare nearer the speaker. A blue flame glinted in his eyes.

"No dead-and-gone King's mistress was ever lovelier than you are, Enchantress! If it were only in my power—"

"But it isn't," Lydia cut him short. "Your mother will choose for you a really eligible 'partie,' with—I hope—oodles of money—all the money that an extravagant boy like you requires. You're like me, my friend, a real artist when it comes to spending. So both of us must marry money. That's a fact."

"You are as cruelly practical as you are beautiful," he gazed at her. "If I can't have you, then I desire no other wife."

Lydia flung him a truly killing ogle. Artificial as he was, the flattery pleased her.

"Nonsense, Rene. You will be a good boy and marry a monument of all the virtues, which I certainly am not."

She gave her horse a sharp cut with her riding crop, and they trotted rapidly up the lovely thoroughfare, turning to the left just by the Arc de Triomphe, and entering the famous Avenue, which was gay with exquisite women in the latest fashion, and luxurious motor-cars and horsemen.

"Such a cosmopolitan crowd!" breathed Lydia, enchanted. "Let's go on into the Bois and see who's there."

Admiring looks were flung at them. This was Lydia's milieu, and she expanded to it as a sunflower does towards the sun.

The tender green of grass and tree and shrub, the gorgeous apartments and buildings, white as wedding cakes, made a delightful background for the kaleidoscope of color that is Paris on a Sunday morning.

They reached the Bois, which looked like fairyland, so exquisite it was, with winding paths and here and there a glimpse of water, like fairy pools and the tracery of green.

Birds carolled happily among the branches, and the air was soft and gentle, like a benediction.

The magic of the spring fired Lydia's blood. If only Landis Ridgeway were her partner in these lovely groves!

"A blessing that he isn't here," she told herself philosophically, "or who knows what madness I'd commit. I might even throw Van Vorst over, and live to regret it all my days!"

She set her horse off at a gallop the Vicomte following. A perfumed breeze caressed her cheek.

Later, they drew their horses to a halt outside that famous Sunday morning rendezvous for riders in the Bois, the little hotel smothered in shrubbery and foliage, where the waiters rush about the lawns with trays of cocktails and "brioches" for the innumerable guests.

A 'garcon' darted towards them, and without dismounting, the Vicomte gave his order.

There was a whole line of other thirsty riders, refreshing themselves in the saddle, and here and there a horse would curvet restlessly, with a jangle of bridle and a clamping of the bit.

"An enchanting picture, isn't it?" laughed Lydia, sipping her Martinique cocktail, while the sun—shining through the young leaves overhead—dappled herself and mount with a dancing filigree of light and shade.

It was with reluctance that the infatuated Frenchman finally relinquished her at one o'clock.

Assisted by Toine, Lydia soon made a lightning change into the gorgeous Premet model and was whirled off to the Ritz in Steve Van Vorst's Delaunay-Belleville.

The gay and ultra-fashionable throng collected there intrigued her mightily. Surely never were such frocks!

Van Vorst ate enormously. He adored his food.

"How the old glutton gobbles!" Lydia thought. Aloud she said, very sweetly:

"What a marvellous connoisseur you are in choosing a meal! You make a poem of it!"

He was flattered.

"And a poem shares the meal with me!" He grinned at her, his overloaded fork suspended half way to his mouth.

From under her pert little 'cloche' hat she gave him a dazzling glance.

"Such gallantry! I'm honored!" She was thinking:

"He's like an over-stuffed bull-frog, with those bulgy eyes of his! And how he croaks!"

The big car took them to the races Longchamps on this sunny day of spring was exquisite with its snow-white stands ablaze with early flowers, its perfect lawns and its enchanting vistas of young green, and swaying trees.

They headed for the paddock, to inspect the horses.

Then came a visit to the betting kiosks.

"Choose your beast and I'll put on three hundred francs for you," announced her escort in his throaty voice.

"That's less than twenty-five dollars!" Lydia calculated. "The old boy's a regular tightwad!"

Aloud she said, ever so sweetly: "How awfully kind and generous you are! But please don't put it on each way—I'm all out to win!"

"Hard-up, are you?"

"Chronically!" She gave a little laugh as trilling as a bird.

"Then I'll make it five hundred francs. The odds are three to one." Lydia's blood tingled as they watched that first race from the Enclosure.

And her horse romped home! Luck attended her the whole of that delightful afternoon. When the Delaunay-Belleville bore them off from Longchamps into the cool depths of the forest, eight thousand francs were tucked away in her ivory-and-satin bag.

Tomorrow—A Thunderbolt.

STEPHENSON STILL MISSING; FRIENDS NOT SENT MESSAGE

Develops Blank Check Sent Wife From Monroe, Mich.

Clarence Stephenson, 40, head bookkeeper for The Bavey Co., wholesale grocers, who disappeared last Tuesday under mysterious circumstances, may be united with his wife in Detroit, Mich., friends here believe.

No word has been received in Xenia from any member of the family since Mrs. Stephenson and two children, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. James Andrews, sister and brother-in-law of Mrs. Stephenson, motored to Detroit, Thursday morning upon learning in a note received by the missing bookkeeper's wife that Detroit was her husband's ultimate destination.

Friends expressed the belief Friday the reunion had probably been effected but had no information as to when the family would return to Xenia.

No motive for Stephenson's sudden departure from the city Tuesday at the peak of a storm after walking out of the company's office, has developed other than his own statement in a letter to his wife written from Monroe, Mich., that he was a "nervous wreck" and was probably suffering from a mental breakdown.

It was also revealed Friday that inclosed in Stephenson's letter to his wife was a blank check signed by the bookkeeper, leaving to his wife's discretion the amount of money she would need to tide over the family's finances until his return.

Friends in Xenia expect word from the Stephenson family in a few days at least. Friends believe he left Xenia to visit relatives in Detroit because of a nervous breakdown brought upon by work.

ANOTHER HEAT WAVE IS GRIPPING OHIO

COLUMBUS, July 9.—Another heat wave gripped Ohio today with the mercury rushing up in headlong fashion. However, weather conditions were for rain before tonight.

Deaths in Ohio, due directly to the heat, numbered three today. One person was drowned in Cleveland, one near Fostoria and another in Zanesville.

Walter Haber, 14, Cleveland, was drowned while swimming in a lake. His companions were unable to save him and police recovered his body hours afterward.

The Rev. Father Benedict Burger, 28, assistant pastor at St. Wendelin's Catholic Church, Fostoria, was drowned while swimming at Catawba Island beach.

When he attempted to swim across the Muskegon River yesterday at Zanesville, Cavender Grayson, 17, was drowned.

John D. Hoag, 50, Cleveland was taken to a hospital after he suffered a heat stroke.

YOUTH IS EXECUTED FOR DOUBLE MURDER

COLUMBUS, O., July 9.—The state last night exacted the life of William "Billy" Clark, 19-year-old Toledo and Cleveland youth in payment for the murder of Ralph and Dorothy Hoffman, farmers of near Fremont.

Clark remained stoically indifferent almost to the end. His only protest was lodged when prison guards strapped the death mask about his head. He smoked a cigarette until the moment before he was sent into eternity.

The current which took the youth's life was turned on at 8:56 p. m. Two minutes later he was pronounced dead and the body was removed to Toledo for burial.

Before he died, Clark admitted to Mark Irwin, prison evangelist, that he killed Hoffman and the latter's wife when they returned suddenly from Gibsonburg and found him looting their home.

Death resulted from heart trouble, according to physicians. Mrs. Jennings said her husband had been ill for several months.

Jennings was a warm personal friend of the late President Harding and was with him on the Pacific Coast tour during which Harding died.

HALF OF CHICAGO POLICE ARE BOOTLEGGERS ATTORNEY SAYS

Counsel for Martin Durkin Charges Accused Killer Was in Connivance With Officers—Court In Uproar

CHICAGO, July 9.—Half of Chicago's police are in the bootlegging business, defense attorney, Eugene McGarry charged today in a brilliant appeal to the jury to acquit Martin Durkin.

"Why should Martin Durkin, a confessed bootlegger find it necessary to kill an officer when he had policeman on his bootlegger payroll and could obtain immunity from arrest with ease? McGarry asked the jury.

"I tell you," he continued, "half of Chicago's police are in this bootlegging business."

McGarry, who is chief defense counsel for the man accused of slaying Edwin C. Shanahan, federal officer, brought the court into an uproar as he tossed a series of verbal bombshells into the administration of justice in Chicago.

State's attorneys leaped to their feet with violent objections, some of which were sustained and others of which were overruled.

Judge Harry B. Miller, found it necessary to warn an assistant states attorney against the use of profanity.

"The state would have you gentlemen of the jury believe," McGarry shouted over the uproar, "that they want to convict Martin Durkin in the interest of national law enforcement. They are lying. They want to convict Martin Durkin because they cannot explain why one of their own number, Assistant States Attorney William McSwiggan, was shot to death with a party of bootleggers."

STATE EMERGENCY BOARD MUST DECIDE ON DETECTIVE BILL

Investigators of Abuse of State Autos Submit Bill

COLUMBUS, O., July 9.—The state emergency board next week will be called upon to decide whether it will pay a bill amounting to $7,320 for an "investigation" of state owned automobiles and their use.

The last Ohio senate authorized the "investigation" and the committee appointed to conduct it, headed by Senator Lowry Miller, of Middletown hired K. H. Helkes, Columbus, former penitentiary guard and private detective to obtain the information and data desired.

Helkes employed an assistant and has submitted a bill of $7,320 for salaries and expenses from April 15, to January 1, 1926. He is said to be still at work although no bill has been submitted for this year. So far he has been paid only $200. His first bill has been approved by Senator Miller. Miller, who last week appeared before the board of control with his bill but was informed only $500 was available to the investigating committee.

Requesting an emergency appropriation of $3,000, Miller was told to submit an itemized statement before the emergency board would consider the request.

SEVENTEEN DEATHS
TOLEDO, O., July 9.—Seventeen violent deaths have been recorded in Toledo, within the past five days. Automobile accidents, drownings, fires and murders were contributory causes.

SMALL INCREASE IN TAX RATE PROVIDED UNDER 1927 BUDGET

Extraordinary Cuts Last Year Force Raise In Levies

Sum of $86,100 will be absorbed by the city next year in current municipal expenses and interest and sinking fund if the annual budget for 1927 submitted by City Manager S. O. Hale and adopted by City Commission Thursday night is approved as a whole by the County Budget Commission.

Should the budget be approved as presented, Xenia's 1927 tax rate will be 6.50 mills or $6.50 per $1,000 property valuation, an increase of fifty cents over the present rate of $6.

The 1927 budget is an increase of $15,200 over the 1926 amount granted for current running expenses. It is based on a total property valuation of $11,780,000.

If, as a result of the county-wide reappraisal of real estate now in progress, it is found the total tax duplicate for Greene County is increased, Xenia's proposed 1927 tax rate can be lowered without a decrease in the total budget requests.

Manager Hale's budget estimate is based on current city expenses this year. The city manager has levied $27,000 in the public safety fund for 1927 an increase of $3,000 over this year.

According to the manager, the city ran short in the safety fund this year despite a transfer from the general fund which showed a good balance.

Unexpected needs arising forced the transfer and the city does not wish to be placed in a similar position next year through an insufficient levy.

Sum of $4,700 is asked for the general fund next year as compared to this year in which no levy was made in this fund and increasing the levy in the safety fund Manager Hale hopes city departments can operate smoothly within the budget in 1927.

The budget request in the interest and sinking fund for 1927 is $29,000, the same as in 1926. In the public health fund $1,400 is requested, identical to this year's figure. Manager Hale only asks for $14,000 in the service fund for 1927, a reduction of $2,500 from this year's amount.

The rate for current expenses will be $4.10 per $1,000 valuation, which, added to the $2.50 rate for the interest and sinking fund, totals the $6.50 proposed rate.

The 1927 budget will be certified to County Auditor R. O. Wead to be submitted to the County Budget Commission, which is authorized by law to approve it in its entirety or make slices. However, as in past years, the budget is expected to stand approved as submitted.

SALEM, O., July 9.—After shooting Mrs. Irene M. Shafer, 37, a divorcee today, Chester Stahl, 40, turned a gun on himself. He died instantly. Physicians said Mrs. Shafer is in a critical condition.

A quarrel preceded the tragedy according to police who said Stahl was a frequent visitor at the woman's home.

POWER MEN VOTE TO STRIKE IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, July 9.—New confusion was added to New York's transit strike today when a group of night shift motive n employees in power sub-stations met at Unity Hall and voted to strike at 1 a. m. tomorrow.

The day shifts of the power men are to meet tonight to take a strike vote and James F. Walsh, head of the motive local, predicted that they will also strike. Two hundred and forty-six men comprise the two shifts forming the local.

If the strike threat is made effective, leaders maintained that it would result in a tie-up of the subway and L. lines, the surface lines of the city and the lines of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Company, entering Manhattan.

SERIOUS COMMUNAL DISORDERS OCCUR

ALLAHABAD, July 9.—Serious communal disorders in which Moslem mobs looted and burned Hindu villages and bazzars in various localities within an area of 500 square miles around Pabna were reported today.

The disorders were reported spreading. Police and military reinforcements were rushed to the disturbed areas.

JUDGE IS DEAD

MIDDLETOWN, O., July 9.—Judge William H. Todhunter, 83, the older member of the Butler County bar, died at his home here from complications brought about by injuries received in an auto accident, a month ago.

Judge Todhunter was known throughout the state. He was prominent in political circles and at one time published a newspaper.

AMERICA IS NATION OF FLIVVER GYPSIES TENT CROWD LEARNS

Chautauqua Audience Told To Buy at Home By Editor

"Great overpopulated cities with an undigested population are the greatest menace to any nation," declared Charles H. Plattenburg, Iowa newspaper editor, addressing a large first night crowd on the Xenia Redpath Chautauqua program, Thursday night. His subject was "The Modern Tale of Two Cities."

"To build communities fit for people to live in is the great task today," he continued. "We don't need large populations, although the size makes little difference if the quality of its citizenship is of a high order."

"God save America if we haven't anything to depend upon but New York and Chicago."

"There have been forty great civilizations on this earth. They are all dead from one disease, and we have that disease. We are by no means the first civilization and no different from the rest."

"Why, I have figured it up and there are fifteen automobiles to one bath tub in Iowa alone and I'd far rather take the bath tub as an index to civilization than the auto."

"The history of one nation is the history of all. Each started as a small village and with the farmers coming to great cities, leaving the traditions and religion of their fathers for the city's vices. Man has ever exploited people and we are traveling along the same line."

It has come to a point today where when we go auto riding we leave the family Bible at home and take along the thermos bottle instead.

"America today has become a nation of flivver gypsies—always on the go."

"We must take care of the small villagers who come to the cities"

HORSE KILLS BOY

DAYTON, O., July 9.—Russell Stoner, 6, was killed when his clothing became entangled in the harness of a horse. The boy was dragged several hundred feet when the horse became frightened and ran away.

LONG DISPUTED CAR FRANCHISE ORDINANCE IS FINALLY PASSED

Ordinance granting the Dayton, Springfield and Xenia Southern Railway Co., a twenty-year renewal of its franchise into the city was formally passed on its second reading by City Commission Thursday night.

Validity of the measure is contingent upon filing of a written acceptance to both the ordinance and plans and specifications for reconstruction of S. Detroit St., when the city street car route is torn up, by the company officials within thirty days.

COLLEGIATE AIR SURROUNDS GOLF TOURNEY

SCIO TO COUNTRY CLUB, COLUMBUS, O., July 9.—Strolling about the spacious clubhouse and extensive grounds of the Scioto Country Club, where the "cream" of America's golfers are striving to wrest the title from Willie McFarlane one is surprisingly aware of the fact that it presents a collegiate atmosphere.

In the first place, George M. "Red" Troutman, impresario and guiding genius of the tournament, when he is not away managing this, that and the other, is assistant director of athletics at Ohio State University. James E. (or Jimmy) as he is usually called, Pollard, who presides over the destiny of the newspapermen gathered here from all the far flung corners of our country is also publicity impressario for O. S. U.

And as the inquisitive reporter makes his way through the subterranean chambers and secret doors of the club house, he is apt to bump into some real high grade help. Marty Karow, Ohio State's outstanding backfield man of last year's team and elected captain of the 1926 team is nothing but a lowly score boy rushing hither and yon, carrying scores to the gentlemen of the press.

Coach J. H. Wiele of Ohio State's team is in charge of the huge galleries which have been flocking about the stars. And George Olson, another coach, is head caddy mas-

CHICAGO PRO TURNS IN EVEN FOURS WHEN ON SECOND ATTEMPT

Leaders Scores 36 Going Out—Is Hard Pressed

SCIO TO COUNTRY CLUB, COLUMBUS, O., July 9.—Fighting to retain the lead which he established over the field in the National Open Championship by a brilliant sixty-eight on the first day Wild Bill Mehlhorn of Chicago went out in thirty-six, even par today.

The Chicago pro was not accurate nor as lucky as on Thursday morning but with the knowledge that several of the other leaders were pressing him closely he fought every minute and reached the turn in even fours.

SCIO TO COUNTRY CLUB, COLUMBUS, O., July 9.—Spurred by the terrific pace set by "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, the Chicago pro, the nation's premier golfers set out this morning for the second round of the national open golf championship.

Mehlhorn's 68, garnered yesterday over the first 18 holes was two better than the cards turned in by Bobby Jones, the American amateur and British Open title holder and John Junior, Portland, Ore., who at the last moment loomed as a formidable contender.

Only one stroke behind Jones and Junior's 70's was Al Espinosa, Chicago and Joe Turnesa, New York, who collected 71's one stroke better than Willis MacFarlane, the defending champion who turned in a par score of 72 after a sensational game.

MacFarlane went into a four day lay for the fourth place when Pat Doyle, Leo Diegel and J. G. Collins, the latter, a Kokomo, Ind., dark horse returned with par cards.

Today's play will be over eighteen holes and tomorrow the sixty golfers with the best scores will battle over 36 holes for the championship.

A terrifically hot sun untempered by a breeze and accentuated by the parched turf, greeted the starters as they teed off this morning.

Although Mehlhorn's round yesterday equalled the course record, he cannot afford to slip today, golf experts declared, pointing out that two strokes is no great handicap for Bobby Jones. Little is known of Junior, who came in at dusk, minus the huge gallery that followed Jones, Mehlhorn, MacFarlane and other champions or ex-champions. Many eyes today were on Walter Hagen who scored a 73 yesterday after a series of bad slips and plenty of hard luck. Other scores ranged from 75 to 90.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Brig. Gen. A. C. Dalton, wartime superintendent of the job of transporting the soldiers to France, went to work today as the director of the huge government merchant fleet while his predecessor, as president of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, E. E. Crowley, alleged he was ousted "without reason" by the U. S. Shipping Board.

Another of the bitter fights which have marked the Shipping Board since it was founded led up to the board's action in accepting the resignation which is exacted from Crowley, when he took the job several months ago.

Crowley's predecessor, Leigh Palmer, was ousted in just such a summary manner, although he was opposed by anti-administration members, while Crowley was removed by administration supporters.

Vice Chairman E. C. Plummer and Commissioner Benson supported Crowley in his statement that he functioned efficiently and saved about $5,000 in his nine months of service. Crowley opposed the sale of the five ships of the Admiral Oriental line to R. Stanley Dollar for $4,500,000.

Dalton has been in the army since 1889. He was awarded the distinguished service medal for his work in supervising the entire American transport service during the world war.

TO APPEAL VERDICT IN HEART BALM SUIT

COLUMBUS, O., July 9.—The verdict of a federal court to Miss Mayme Taggart, 47, Chicago, from Frank Flegestahler, former Chillicothe, Ohio, realtor, probably will be appealed, Flegestahler's attorneys indicated today.

The verdict was returned late yesterday after several days testimony in which Miss Taggart declared Flegestahler promised to marry her, but rebuffed her for another woman after he had quit a lucrative position.

CIVILIAN FLYING LIMITED IN JAPAN

TOKYO, July 9.—Under the new aviation law for Korea, to be put into force in December, no civilian planes will be permitted to cross over the Korean strait because so much of these waters are included in the strategic zone. Only army and navy flyers will be allowed to take this short cut from Korea to Japan or vice versa.

WOMAN KILLED

WARREN, O., July 9.—A woman was killed and four persons were injured when a street car and an automobile collided here during the night. Mrs. Hattie Wood, Youngstown, was killed. Those injured were Lynn Vonker, Youngstown; James Young, Greenford; Mrs. Emma Simms, Youngstown; and William Bell, Sallineville.

Fights Strike

Frank L. Hedley, president of the Interborough Rapid Transit of New York, led the fight against striking motorists.

CROWLEY PROTESTS REMOVAL AS CHIEF OF MERCHANT FLEET

REMOVE FIRST BODY FROM WRECKED SHIP FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Sailors Enter Hull Of S-51 In Search For Remains

NAVY YARD, BROOKLYN, N. Y., July 9.—The submarine S-51 today began to give up its dead. Soon after noon a slow moving morgue wagon, a marine guard seated beside the driver and a motorcycle policeman preceding drew up to the Naval Hospital morgue here and from it carried the first body recovered from the interior of the wrecked submersible. There was no announcement of identification, if any had been made.

NAVY YARD, BROOKLYN, N. Y., July 9.—Through the slimy water-soaked interior of the salvaged submarine S-51 naval enlisted men, the crew of the sister ship S-50 searched for the bodies of their hero friends and one-time comrades today.

Clad in black slickers and south-western, ten picked submarine sailors, knowing every inch of the dark passages and companionways because the ship's build is identical with their own craft, entered the hull when it was forced open in dry dock here. They carried white canvas sea bags to collect the effects of the dead.

Just before the ship was unsealed, Rear Admiral Plunkett, yard commandant, ordered all civilians from the yard. There was a pathetic scene at the gate as a young woman, dressed in deep mourning, sought permission to remain and view the removal of the bodies. She gave her name as Miss B. L. Garrett, and declared that she had been the sweetheart of Robert S. Willis, torpedo man, first class, of Norfolk, who died with the sinking of the ship. He had only a week to serve in the navy, when he died, she said.

Again and again the girl pleaded with the marines on guard to readmit her, but was refused.

POLICE KILL YOUTH ATTEMPTING HOLD UP

IRONTON, O., July 9.—Trapped by police who had been apprised three bandits were holding up motorists on a highway near here, Albert Stevens, 25, was shot to death last night and his two companions, Charles, 23, his brother and Gerald Griffin, former Ohio State University student, were captured.

After receiving reports of a series of holdups, police drove to a spot near here and parked. Fifteen minutes elapsed, officers declared, when Stevens, with a drawn gun, leaped onto the running board of their car and commanded the officers to raise their hands. The officers responded with a volley of shots, killing Stevens instantly.

Charles and Griffin were captured after a chase which lasted into the early hours today. Before fleeing the bandits fired on the officers, according to the officers. Griffin is said to be the son of a prominent Ironton dairyman.

PRIEST DROWNS AT OUTING OF BOYS

CATAWBA ISLAND, O., July 9.—Authorities today resumed their search for the body of the Rev. Father Benedict L. Burger, assistant pastor of St. Wendelin's Church, Fostoria, who drowned at Gem Beach near here late yesterday.

Father Burger was swimming with a score of Fostoria boys—youths from his parish whom he had taken on an outing—when he suddenly foundered in the water and sank.

"Oh, my back," the Priest shouted as he disappeared. The tragedy occurred at 6 p. m. and authorities immediately began dragging the water. Efforts to locate the body had proved futile at midnight and the search was abandoned, until today.

REPORT FIGHTING ALONG FRONTIER

ATHENS, July 9.—Isolated fighting was reported today from the Rumania-Bulgarian frontier where ten Rumanian soldiers were reported to have been killed.

The death of one Rumanian gendarme in a frontier skirmish yesterday in Bucharest. The jealousies of the Balkans, especially with regard to the post-war division of territory and new frontiers, have caused a series of bloody incidents along virtually every Balkan border at one time or another since 1918.

WILL BOYISH BOB TAKE PLACE OF PERMANENT? SCRIBE THINKS SO

Popularity of the permanent wave is on the wane, a survey of beauty parlor business shows. Its place in the desire of the girls is being taken by the boyish bob while the straight hair design is also in vogue.

Trouble with the "permanent" is that it is not always permanent, particularly in hot weather when it's life is of but short duration, it is said.

The boyish bob's popularity is growing day by day because it is convenient, looks particularly well after a swim and needs so much less care and attention.

Charles Nessler, inventor of the "permanent," declares "it's the men that put the crimp in the permanent wave. They ridiculed it in comic sections and made funny pictures about it in wives out of it when the idea was first advanced. Even now, they're the man objectors I believe."

Permanent waving was really invented in 1905, but was not worked out primarily as a way of making the hair curly. It was simply a form of treatment for oily hair. Mr. Nessler having observed that curly hair was not usually oily. He figured that if he could make straight hair curl for any length of time, then excessive oiliness might be cured. He was surprised when, in time, women began getting these long-lasting waves for the wave itself and not to cure a scalp condition.

"What permanent waving does," says Mr. Nessler, "is to change the character of the hair so that it absorbs humidity. That's the secret of curliness. I believe most people have the tendency toward natural curliness washed out of their hair by too frequent washing when they're young. That's why, I think, you see so many curly heads in poor parts of town and so much straight hair among the well cared for children of the rich."

Mr. Nessler says any one can have a permanent wave, but he

New Plant Wizard Grows Foreign Fruits in Florida

From Florida comes the news of a man whose horticultural work rivals that of the late Luther Burbank. He has imported and developed many unusual fruits, which thrive in Florida soil. At the left, above, is seen a "Monstera Deliciosa" which looks like corn and tastes like combined strawberries, pineapples and bananas. Center is H. W. Johnston, the horticulturist. Right, a number of "Jujubas," fruit native to Arabia, acclimatized by Mr. Johnston.

VICTIM OF ATTACK IS NOW RECOVERING

Mrs. Anna Smith, 40, wife of John W. Smith, tenant on the James Andrews farm, Federal Pike, who received a slashed throat and serious gunshot wounds inflicted by C. B. Blackmore, 50, co-tenant on the farm, June 30, is recovering rapidly. She is able to sit up a part of each day and the wounds are healing perfectly, according to Dr. M. I. Marsh, Cedarville, her physician.

Blackmore, who confessed to the attack, is lodged in the County Jail. He pleaded guilty to a charge of cutting with intent to kill before R. O. Copsey, justice of the peace and was bound over to the grand jury under $2,000 bond. Blackmore is said to have told authorities he "lost his head" in a fit of anger, after requesting the return of money he had placed in Mrs. Smith's keeping.

REPORT TRACTION COMPANY HAS SOLD PART OF RAIL LINE

Report the Dayton, Springfield and Xenia Southern Railway Co., has entered into tentative negotiations for disposal of its right-of-way from Market St., to Fairground Ave. to the Springfield and Xenia Traction Co. is without official confirmation.

T. J. Ferneding, Dayton, superintendent of the D. and X. line, is quoted as making the statement at a recent conference of city officials with Federal Judge Smith Hickenlooper in Dayton over the franchise dispute, that sale of the N. Detroit St., tracks to the Springfield and Xenia line had been tentatively agreed upon.

The transfer in ownership was suggested and authorized by Judge Hickenlooper in Cincinnati, when the application of the D. and X. for abandonment of its city street car route in Xenia was given a hearing. Franchise granted the D. and X. by City Commission authorizes continued interurban service into the city only to Market St.

RHYME BUT NO REASON

The girl who today treads the aisle to the tune of the wedding march observes certain marriage rites so old that the original reasons for their existence are forgotten.

Her wedding veil, for instance, is a relic of the canopy that was formerly held over the bride to seclude her from profane gaze. The ancient Romans attached great importance to the custom of veiling the bride, the principal object being to protect her from the evil eye, a superstition current among many tribes and races. Among other early peoples the glance of a bride spelled misfortune for the one meeting it, unless it happened to be the bridegroom, so the bridal veil was acquired.

The custom of wearing a previously worn bridal veil is believed to have originated with Roman brides who supposed good luck to attend those wed in a veil previously worn to the altar.

That the wedding ring was originally a mark of ownership, evidence that the wearer was the property of her husband, is a fact well known in this day of equal suffrage and the new freedom for women. Today the ring is but a symbol of marriage.

One might enumerate ad infinitum the instances where once significant customs survive today as meaningless ceremonies or are observed for reasons having no relation to the cause of their origin in antiquity.

PERFUMED HILLS

For some days now I have been looking into the faces of marvelous hills, many of them grown to mountains. I have seen them in the distance, and I have seen them so near that they beggar all description in words.

Some touched the sea and received the daily reach of its waves and soothing song at night time. Some stood lonely out in the desert with drab gowning, but often dotted, like a woman's hand, with the rarest gems in colored flowers. Tall, white conical flowers, blue and purple and red in all shapes and forms.

I have stood in the cool of the evening and breathed in the perfume of these beautiful hills, and during the day from trains have been uplifted as well.

To many, I know, hills are just hills. But to many of us they are the movements of thoughts, solid, roaming, silent, full of dreams, and poetry.

The other evening I followed a sunset playing hide and seek with a chain of these hills. At one time a storm arose in the distance and I looked for a little while as though the sunset would go to sleep in a blanket of gray. But soon the storm shifted and left as gorgeous a pink and purple sky as I have ever seen. I put my head out of my hotel window and lived out there in that beauty.

I always think of these hills and ranges as perfumed in the same way. I have come to associate the delicate perfume of the flowers with the perfect and exacting dress of refined women.

You cannot say much in the presence of great hills. No two are ever alike. No two talk the same language. Yet they are all related in the closest bonds.

When I climb a hill I feel as though I am embracing something that is a part of me—something mysterious, something divine.

LEEDS CELEBRATES THREE HUNDREDTH BIRTHDAY WITH CARNIVAL AND FAIR

LEEDS, Yorkshire, July 9 (UP)—The tercentenary celebration of Leeds opened this morning with a great parade.

Streets and buildings are gaily decorated with flags and bunting and most business houses and mills are closed for the great days.

It was on July 13, 1626 that Charles I granted a charter of incorporation to Leeds after an inquiry into complaints of maladministration. The thirteenth will be the big day of the celebration, but the carnival will continue through the eighteenth.

Many thousands of visitors from neighboring towns and cities and tourists have arrived to help Leeds in its birthday party. The Government is represented by Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, president of the Board of Trade, and Lord Eustace Percy, president of the Board of Education. The Earl of Crawford, president of the London Society of Antiquaries, is also here.

A great industrial exhibition has opened in the town hall, and in addition there is an "Old Leeds" exhibition. In the program every phase of the city's life will find illustration. A series of historical pageants will tell the story of the city's growth, and at night historical plays will be given in the Theatre Royal. The city is prepared to receive a million visitors and there will be much fun with the lighter carnival attractions.

Everywhere may be seen the city's slogan, "Leeds Leeds." While the past is being used as an educational background, many of the displays look to the future and a greater city.

Leeds was a tiny village in the days when the Romans made York their capital before London. Its important clothing trade had an almost equally ancient origin in the hand looms of the farmer clothier. At the time of the first charter these farmers and cottagers would bring their bales of cloth on pack horses every Tuesday morning for the sale that they conducted on the bridge. A peculiarity of this trading is that it would begin on the striking of a bell, that it was conducted in silence and was terminated quickly. The people of Leeds point to this as an explanation of why they do business so rapidly and with little chatter.

Leeds was lucky to be out of the invader's track and therefore escaped the ravages of war, whether in the raids of the Normans or in the civil war clashes. The tradespeople prospered in a quiet way until the invention of steam power, which Leeds credits to Matthew Murray, who they say succeeded thirteen years before Stephenson applied the principle of steam power to machinery. With steam, mills sprang up and an industrial revolution occurred which has made Leeds such an important city of Great Britain, with a population of close to half a million.

The national spring is built up of sections of wire, with strong springs at the end of each line of sections to give tension. Type of spring may be repaired, when badly stretched or sagged, by having the wire sections or the end-springs renewed.

The woven wire is the cheapest kind of spring, and it cannot be renewed when sagged, although it can be repaired in a measure by having lengths of wire secured to it here and there to strengthen the mesh.

CHOOSING A BED

"What kind of beds shall I choose for our new little home?" writes a Bride-to-be.

That all depends upon how much time you wish to devote to caring for them! The easiest kind of bed to keep clean is the enamel iron bed—but few housekeepers choose it in preference to the beautiful polished wood bed or the lustrous and gleaming brass bed. Brass beds are covered with lacquer before leaving the factory, and this keeps them from tarnishing—as long as the lacquer remains on, making it necessary only to wipe the brass surface with a dampened chamois or cheesecloth duster. When the lacquer wears off, however, the exposed brass surfaces will require polishing, and should be relacquered. Wooden beds, of course, demand constant polishing. Whereas the sturdy enameled iron bed may be scrubbed and scoured and dusted without much thought or especial care. For this reason—that they are easily cared for—many women choose iron beds for their homes and then paint them in colors to match the color scheme of their bedroom hangings, thus making them appear much daintier than if left plain white. A good metal bed should have welded corners, no sign of a tube being seamed, and firm joints. Bedsteads of all kinds are generally six feet, three inches in length and four feet, six inches in width for full-size; and three feet—or sometimes two feet, six inches—for couch size. Couch beds are the least expensive and as the day couch is much sat upon, one should make sure that it has strong springs which will not sag under the constant strain.

Springs: A box spring is the most expensive kind. It is made of spiral springs with a padding like a thin mattress laid on the spirals, then the whole covered by ticking. This makes the warmest type of bed and is more comfortable than any other kind of spring, but is more difficult to keep clean than the national or the woven wire spring.

The spiral spring is another very comfortable type. It is composed of a set of vertical wire spirals, like those used in upholstered furniture, each spring set in a wood or metal base. When

CEDARVILLE LIBRARY

Public Library of Cedarville is one of the many thousands of libraries in the United States which have come into existence through the generosity of Andrew Carnegie.

Cedarville College united with the village and township in a joint appeal for the donation, as a result Carnegie made a gift, contingent as all his gifts of a similar nature are, upon the recipients of the donation, guaranteeing a maintenance fund of ten per cent of the amount given.

Cedarville Twp. bought the lot and the title to it, as well as to the building, was subsequently vested in the college. However, the township owns the books and pays for all additions to the library.

The township also maintains the library by a direct tax amounting to about $1,400 annually, this about paying the librarian and janitor and heating the building. The township also pays $150 a year toward the upkeep of the building and grounds.

The library was opened in 1908 with appropriate ceremonies. Township trustees appoint the library board.

TODAY

We think of time in years, yet in today

Joy comes and goes and honor lives or dies.

What is to be when next the sun shall rise,

Save death and sorrow, is our own to say,

This morning's deed shall shape tomorrow's way:

In this brief act the life-long future lies,

Now we are judged as foolish men or wise,

Worthy of trust or reeds temptations sway.

The day is all-important, for the years

Are but a sheaf of days which time reaps in;

So stand you fast against the world's harsh sneers,

Be true today—the future's faith you win.

In this brief hour of trial splendor lies

Today your honor either lives or dies.

Severe sunburn caused intense pain Skin so sore could not touch it Resinol heals

Seven Mile, Ohio, Feb. 13.—"I am a farmer and am out-of-doors all my working hours. During harvest time last year, I became badly sunburned about the face, neck and arms. They were so irritated and pained so intensely I could hardly stand anything touching them. I tried various remedies, but nothing did me any good until I tried Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. I was relieved by the first application and by the time the first jar of ointment and cake of soap were gone my sunburn had vanished. I am always a booster for Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment." Aunt Sophia has just come in to remind them that if they expect to have dinner at the roadside tavern the Goofer recommended they'd better hurry. Aunt Sophia learned long since that the only way to get this family off for a week-end trip is to start them a day early. Since they linger, though, you can linger, too—long enough to notice Aunt Sophia's bathrobe of black and silver brocade, Mitzi's negligee of gold lace over georgette and Aunt Goofer's kimono of rose brocade with trimmings a shade deeper of satin.

After a time—what time no one knows—they are quite ready. Aunt Sophia wears a tweed cape-coat and a little hat. Polly's suit is of jersey, a beige two-piece dress with the skirt pleated only in front a straight blouse and a short cape. Mitzi has remembered that only loud plaids are smart and has put on over her trim frock a loose topcoat of plaid camel's hair faced with a plain color to match one of the stripes. Dad is less interested in their costumes than he usually is—he has just discovered that the Goofer is nowhere in sight and he is about to explode or have an apoplectic stroke or something.

The Theatre

The past year has been a lean one for the dance. Acrobatic, eccentric dances, devoid of grace, wit and beauty have won loud applause in vaudeville and revue programs. The musical comedy has moved to a point where a feeble plot revolves around choruses of shapely dancing girls. Every one has danced—fat and lean, ingenues and tragedians. The Charleston has swept everywhere!

Accordingly, there has been much talk of the decadence of the dance "Our dancers," cry the well bred "are nothing but contortionists and these sissy fads have supplanted the glorious dances of yesterday." The Charleston is doomed to lose out in the race, the same as the waltz and polka, according to dance authorities.

And these same "well bred" people are of the same type, who, back in the early nineteenth century deplored the introduction of the waltz, when a man was forced to put his arm around the lady's waist. And like the horrified person of the '80's who thought the two-step was a sample from the Devil's sampler box. Each new dance, as each new other introduction and "fad" has had its share of disapproval and the old world moves merrily on!

"Really, there is no reason to get excited about the situation," says the editor of "The Dance," magazine devoted to dancers. "Public taste has not declined. There have always been peep shows. Sensational, grotesque feats have been applauded for hundreds of years. Few of these fads have been as amusing as the Charleston, few have required as much skill as the acrobatic dances now in demand. The public will always get its meat and also the discriminating one percent will find its hors d'oeuvres and pastries."

Summer is the season when many of Broadway's actors go to the "country." Most of them go for work, however, instead of vacations. "Country" as defined by the New Yorker, is any place outside his city and where the players can go to fatten their purses during the lean months on the Rialto. Out in the "country" region, approximately 150 stock companies are in operation during the Summer. Only a few out-standing drama successes run through the hot months in New York. Business at the box office starts to drop in May and June and then the slump is in full force.

"Now" is a more powerful word than "Do It Later." It fills that coal bin today against the cold and snow of next winter. Say "Now" over the phone. We'll know what you mean.

The Big Question

is in hot weather what to eat. The second question is meats that are fresh home killed, kept clean, handled clean and properly refrigerated. Then you can feel that the meat you get is fresh, tender, something you can depend on. That is what you get at our market, combined with courtesy and moderate prices.

WITNESS IS FOUND IN M'PHERSON CASE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 9.—An eye witness of the purported kidnapping of Almee Semple McPherson was produced today by the evangelist. He is Harry C. Swift, who claims he saw Mrs. McPherson thrown into an auto near the Nevada bath-house on the afternoon of May 18 and whisked away by two men and a woman. Swift's story may be told to the Los Angeles County grand jury when it reconvenes next Tuesday.

Jap Student Invents Radio Movie

Hiroshi Ando, a student of Waseda University in Tokyo, has successfully completed his experiments with a radio movie. The youthful inventor is seen here with a part of his apparatus, by which scenes photographed in one city may be projected on the screen in another.

Scotland has discovered that they can pleasantly eke out their "pin money" by the judicious investment of that odd household shilling which nobody misses, and they are believed to be the solid support of street betting. They have staunch allies in the milkman, the butcher's boy and the itinerant street vendor of flowers; these worthies accept the domestic shilling wrapped in a piece of paper containing simply the household address "11 Belsize Lane" and the name of the horse that is "fancied," say "Sonatina." If Sonatina wins at 5 to 1, then he good housewife receives that very same afternoon her original shilling and five shillings more. If she loses, she probably says nothing much about it.

It is this widespread household betting which has driven even the sternest non-conformist newspapers to carry racing information. They all now have their own expert, their own "tipsters"; within certain limits a successful forecaster can do wonders for an English newspaper's circulation, far more than any newspaper cartoonist.

Even the Socialist Daily Herald is said to owe much of its very considerable circulation to the widespread belief in shops, factories and mines that its racing expert who writes under the somewhat aristocratic nom de plume of "Templegate" is an absolute wizard at "picking the winners."

In addition, several dozen racing sheets appear to make a living by the dissemination of "absolutely reliable" information and astute suggestions.

It is perfectly legal to send an open telegram to a bookmaker, or a postcard, or a letter, containing your bet; it is perfectly legal to call him up on the telephone and "place" your bet; it is perfectly legal to meet him or any other bookmaker on the race course and there and then bet with him as to which horse will win, or which will come in one, two, three. All this the courts have declared to be perfectly legal. It is known as "credit betting"—that is, betting against a credit account—or "race course betting."

"Not Possible To Classify"
By Mack Sauer
I'M GETTING ROUGH

I've always treated people right and met them on the square, and to a friend like black or white, I've always been a square. I've loaned my clothes and money too, and toiled to help a brother. Today I'm feeling mighty blue—I'll never help another. I'm tired of being kind to folks who treat my favors rude—they are an ignorant bunch of soaks who know no gratitude.

Ten bucks last year I loaned to Pete—it was the last I had no more he knows me on the street—his eyesight's getting bad. I once thought him a dandy guy, and we were best of friends; but now he always passes by as down the street he wends. I'll never loan another cent, although I'm blessed with many; I'll live in peace and merriment, and keep my every penny. I'll lose no friends from this day on because I gave a hand; my loaning days are past and gone, I've learned a lesson grand.

At restaurants I've stood in line with knife and fork and tray; and I'd be feeling mighty fine when in would walk some day, who'd crowd right in ahead of me to get his meat and beans. I always kindly let him be—I should have kicked his jeans. One day last week to get a shave I sat an hour or more, when in there came a thoughtless knave stomping through the door. I let the barber cut his hair and paid him no concern. Oh I have been a fool I know for always being kind; I used to think it paid me so, but now I've changed my mind. Too long I've let my rights go hang to please the other guy, while he has never cared a dang if I would live or die. To butt right in ahead of me is unforgiving sin and he who does it better be all set for cashing in.

So leave me to my own desires and in the days to come, I'll get my rights in cars and tires and chew my chewing gum. I'll take my turn when 'ere it comes and never loan my mon. I'll have no time for reckless bums who spoil my joy and fun. The only one who makes me quit the vows I highly prize, must be a belle who'll make a hit and gladden both my eyes. A pretty maid with eyes of blue might get a favor still, but she must smile and thank me too, to get my good free will. So let no damsel keep my seat or friend desires my clothes, for I will wave about the heat where never are there snows. I'd like to treat all people kind, if they'd but give some thanks. Instead of frowns as cold as ice, which should be found on cranks. I'm tired of being kind to folks who treat my favors rude; they are an ignorant bunch of soaks who know no gratitude.

A terrible poor column today but what can you expect from a fellow especially when there was cider to be had. Use this page regularly. Just charge your ads.

or we are lost as a nation. Secondly in importance is to keep the children in the small towns where the normal atmosphere is much better."

After several utterances on fried chicken and other important national questions, the lecturer expressed his belief in God, good schools, good farming and the old home town, making an earnest plea to boost the home city.

Of the several essentials necessary in building a great community, the spirit of the people, loyalty comes first. In most small towns there is a lack of that spirit of co-operation. Be a booster not a knocker.

"If you believe Xenia is the best town in Ohio, boost it; if you don't believe it, boost any way and maybe others will believe it. We must also have a spirit of loyalty in buying at home. American people love to be 'bumbugged' but cheapness is not everything. It doesn't pay to save a few pennies and kill your own town."

"One of the best ways to build up a community is to spend your money in it."

"A spirit of sacrifice is another thing. Nothing ever came to this world without costing something."

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned has been duly appointed and qualified as assessor of the City of Xenia, Ohio, by the Probate Court of Greene County, Ohio. GEO. H. SMITH, Assessor.

ALLEGED LIQUOR RING LEADERS ARE RELEASED ON BOND

Three men whose connections with an alleged bootleg liquor ring unearthed by city and county authorities Wednesday, brought about their arrest were at liberty under a total of $5,200 bail Friday.

Fred Love, Dayton, alleged ring leader, Jack Price, Chicago, and F. C. Armeody, an alleged Chicago attorney, were released pending their hearing before Probate Judge S. C. Wright, Friday, July 16.

Love put up $2,400 bond, and Armeody and Price $1,400 each. U. S. Deputy Marshal Carson M. Pratt, Dayton, is directing further investigation of the case. The trio pleaded not guilty to various charges of possession and transportation of liquor before Judge Wright Thursday.

A case of bonded whiskey and five gallons of alcohol were found in the auto in which they were riding when arrested.

"But it isn't much to fight alone," he concluded.

A great variety of worth while music was offered by Harold Lewis and his Symphony Players, preceding Mr. Plattenburg's address. Their program ranged from symphony sketches to the tunes which everybody knows. A special group of old negro spirituals was presented as well as familiar hymns, popular hits of yesterday and musical comedy selections.

Sam Grathwell, popular lecturer, spoke on "Thinkers and Thinkers" Friday morning and on "Getting By Your Hoodoo" in the afternoon.

Friday night Chautauqua goes have a treat in store for them in Channing Pollock's drama, "The Fool," one of the most discussed plays of the twentieth century.

CHILDHOOD AND EDUCATION
OF MOSES

GOLDEN TEXT: Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it. Proverbs 22:6.

LESSON TEXT: Exodus 2:1-10; Acts 7:13-22; Hebrews 11:23-24.

TIME: The birth of Moses is set down by Prof. Beecher at B. C. 1578.

PLACE: The location of the lesson is not given, "perhaps Tanis (Zaan) one of the chief royal residences in the northeast of the Delta, near the mouth of the Tanitic branch of the Nile, is intended."

INTRODUCTION: God in His wisdom raises up a great man to carry on any great work that He has in mind for humanity. Israel has spent sufficient time in Egypt. God has trained His people so that they are capable of being raised to a higher plane. The people have suffered and God has heard its cry for help and delivered them from Egypt. It takes a personage big enough to deliver them according to His idea. Moses is born, who is one of the largest characters of the Bible. First we find him helpless, a babe, in a basket, in the river, so that he will not be harmed by the Egyptians who tried, in vain, to prevent the Hebrew from multiplying. The babe shall grow and rule all coming generations from Sinai. Here we witness Providence play around this infant.

1. A NEW BABE: Even in Israel's suffering and oppression, the spark of love was bright and here a man and woman, both of the tribe of Levi, were married and to them came a babe, a son, fair and good to look upon. The world would die if love should be removed entirely. The names of this pair play a big part in God's plan, but the fruits of their love, their babe, will play one of the most important parts in history, in the world. Parents may be humble before the world but who knows what the offspring may bring to the world for God, as a part of His great program of life here and eternal. A babe in the home raises the love and home life to a much higher plane, toward God and His throne where He must keep his every ready supply of little blessings. God be thanked for the little ones and happy should the man be who has them.

2. DANGER FACES THE BABE: Pharaoh had failed the step of the stem of Hebrew population in its multiplication by oppression so he issued a decree that all the male children should be killed at birth. Herod became a murderer of the innocents, even today in some heathen countries they slaughter the babes. One of the mysteries and tragedies of life is the fact that a home may be Christian in spirit and training, yet every child is exposed to danger and destruction through disease and vice, as it grows.

3. A MOTHER'S PLAN OF SAFETY: One can imagine the love and passion with which this mother would clasp the son, born since the decree, to her bosom, and how she would plan to save him from that terrible thing murder. Her motherly instinct and devotion promptly came into play. She hid him in her home for three months and at that time she realized it was no longer safe to hide him thus. She made a cradle or ark of bullrushes and lined it with pitch and took it to the river Nile and placed the little basket laden with its precious cargo, in the water among the rushes along the shore. She slowly went to her home with all faith in God to save her babe for her. We do not know by what means she expected God to save him but she believed, and her faith was rewarded. She had served God for His guidance and He accepted her gift. Her babe, and at once started upon a plan to use that gift. How much God can use the different gifts that we are capable of giving Him, self, talent, money, etc. We must ask God to come into our homes and help us protect our loved ones from all danger that lurks around today. We should train our children after the plan of God (leave them to His guidance and He will not fail and have them put on the armour of God and they will be safe.

4. ROYALTY APPEARS: Providence now steps to the river, in that the daughter of Pharaoh, the maidens appear at the river to bathe. She saw the queer little basket and sent her maid to bring it to her. To her surprise she found in it a babe, which was crying. Could any of us refuse a babe that was crying its appeal to us. Her heart was touched, the same as your heart and mine would have been touched. She was too human and kind to fulfill her evil father's decree. Her heart was stronger than her father's hand. In starting and wonderful ways does God accomplish His purpose. Pharaoh tried to exterminate the Hebrews and his own daughter disobeyed his will and was the instrument through whom they were delivered, with the consent of God. We cannot hope to fight God and win. We do not always know just what God will do with us, and in His plans, but it behooves us to permit Him to guide us completely. Save the children because they may be the means of saving us, in the plans and hands of God.

5. HIS SISTER'S THOUGHTFULNESS: A little sister's love was the next step in God's plan, as she stepped forward and suggested that she be permitted to go and get a nurse for the tiny babe of the Hebrew woman. She had lingered to see what would become of her baby brother after her mother had deposited him there. The royal lady realized her helplessness in caring for the babe and she consented, whereupon the girl brought her own mother, that of the babe. Children still help God carry on His great plans of salvation. Children are exceedingly valuable in the sight of God.

6. BABE RESTORED TO MOTHER: She is to be paid for the caring for her babe for the royal princess, even in the face of the king's decree. Pharaoh's God is working so we need have no fear. His mother is to teach and train him in spirit and prayer, and thus mold him into a great character and destiny. Abraham Lincoln said, "All that I am, I owe to my angel mother. When God needs a great man he created a great mother. When he was grown she brought him to Pharaoh's daughter, by request, and he became her son. This Hebrew boy received an Egyptian name and began his life in the court. He became learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians. Great men are armed with the power of thought. He was fitted for God's work. Like we fit our children to do God's will in this vast and great world.

COUNSEL
I have no fear. What is in store for me shall find me self-reliant, undismayed. God grant my only cowardice may be afraid to be afraid.

SCHOOL OF METHODS SCHEDULED AT CAMP GROUNDS IN AUGUST
Announcement was made today that the annual School of Methods of the Young People's Union of the Ohio Annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, will be held on the camp grounds at Sabina, August 9 to 15.

PROTESTANT TELLS OF EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS RECENTLY
An interesting article on the recent Eucharistic Congress of the Catholic Church in Chicago is contained in the July 8 issue of The Christian Century, Protestant interdenominational magazine. Paul Hutchinson, managing editor, under the title of "Rome Comes to Chicago," give a graphic account of the huge convocation, painting a dramatic picture of scenes during the assemblage. In part, he said:

"Perhaps, after all, Rome never changes. Perhaps her boast, semper idem, is justified. You climb into your automobile and are whirled for miles over paved highways, patrolled by policemen mounted on motorcycles. Or you make the same journey in cars propelled at blinding speed by the electric third rail. And at the end of your journey you meet Rome—Rome shepherding her flock along another paved highway, with cross-surmounted electric light-posts every twenty-five feet—but the old Rome, with her banners and her chants and her procession of the sacred host, making pilgrimage still beneath the forest shade. Look for but ten minutes, and your eyes can see nothing of this twentieth century, but rather such a sight as Chaucer might have looked on when his pilgrims met the chanting faithful emerging from the glades about Canterbury.

"Or you scurry across the traffic-crowded street of a booming city in a new world, skirt the debris of an engineering adventure in electrification, enter a stadium still glistening white in its newness, mark the microphones and the amplifiers and the floodlights and all the other signs of a new day. And then, into the midst of this massed modernity, there marches the grave circumstance of the princes of the church, each with his attendants, contributing his part to a pageantry centuries old. And before you know it every trace of what is new has faded from your vision, and you are standing with the multitude to shout, 'Mundelein! Mundelein! Much as the burghers of Constance must have shouted for a passing cardinal five long centuries ago. "It is an amazing thing, this power of Rome to come into a totally new alien circumstance and so quickly to overwhelm it with her ancient symbolism. Had you not seen it done, you would not have believed its possibility. Surely, if anywhere, Chicago is the last place on earth to respond to any ritual conducted in an unknown, dead tongue. Chicago is a place of steel and mortar rising out of the fecund, black prairie soil. And Rome is a thing of symbols and mysteries and the evasive of an old and far-off day. There is nothing subtle about Chicago, there is nothing obvious about Rome. If Chicago has ever had a spiritual baptism, it has been the baptism of the circuit-riding, the revival meeting, the mourner's bench. Yet Rome has shown her power to compel the awe of Chicago. And who could have escaped that influence?"

The writer then describes the special service for the Holy Name Society in the stadium, when only men were present, and the impressiveness of the massed singing and of the lighted candles at the blessing. He then describes the scene at Mundelein on the closing day of the Congress, the Mass celebrated for the multitude and the procession with the Blessed Sacrament, un-interrupted by the storm that drove pilgrims to shelter.

The GILDED ROSE

by May Christie

LEADING CHARACTERS IN THE STORY:

ROSILYN PAGE, the hard-worked daughter of a Long Island innkeeper, finds herself on his death, heiress of a huge fortune. She is deeply in love with

LANDIS RIDGEWAY, a charming young fellow in financial difficulties, who visited the inn regularly for ten years and was always kind to the lonely girl. His heart has been broken by the faithfulness of

LYDIA HARBROOK, beautiful and utterly heartless woman of the world who is planning to marry

STEVIE VAN VORST, a wealthy old roue, although she is fond of Landis.

MRS. FLORENCE RIDGEWAY, Landis' mother, fearing poverty invites Rosilyn to visit her and her son, and induces Landis to marry Rosilyn, although he loathes himself for taking her advice. Immediately after the ceremony, Rosilyn overhears gossip in which she learns that Landis has married her for her money—she hears herself spoken of as the Gilded Rose. Heartbroken, she prepares to leave on her wedding journey.

Lydia Harbrook meanwhile is in Paris, reveling in a glorious spring day.

CHAPTER 15

Lydia's Adorers

BEAUTIFUL lady, I am desolated by your silence," gallantly murmured the Vicomte at Lydia's side as they rode together in the Bois. "Of what, pray, are you thinking so intently?"

Lydia flashed her enchanting smile at the infatuated boy. Once married to Van Vorst, the Vicomte still would be her cavalier, she knew. Really the French were much more sensible in these matters than the English-speaking peoples!

"I was thinking that if I'd lived a century or two ago, I'd have been a du Barry or a Pompadour! The role of King's favorite would have fitted me exactly. Money, Power, Position, Homage, I could want nothing more of life."

The Vicomte moved his chestnut mare nearer the speaker. A blue flame glinted in his eyes.

"No dead-and-gone King's mistress was ever lovelier than you are, Enchantress! If it were only in my power—"

"But it isn't," Lydia cut him short. "Your mother will choose for you a really eligible 'partie', with—I hope—oodles of money—all the money that an extravagant boy like you requires. You're like me, my friend, a real artist when it comes to spending. So both of us must marry money. That's a fact."

"You are as cruelly practical as you are beautiful," he gazed at her. "If I can't have you, then I desire no other wife."

Lydia flung him a truly killing ogle. Artificial as he was, the flattery pleased her.

"Nonsense, Rene. You will be a good boy and marry a monument of all the virtues, which I certainly am not."

She gave her horse a sharp cut

TITLE BESTOWED ON FORMER PRINCIPAL OF XENIA SCHOOL

Title of Teacher Emeritus was bestowed upon John R. Blackburn, 85, once principal of East High School in Xenia for almost fifteen years and recognized as one of the greatest classic scholars among negroes in the United States, at the graduation exercises of the Colored Industrial School in Cincinnati this week.

Blackburn was principal and teacher at East High here many years ago.

He was graduated from Dartmouth College in the '50's and has been an active teacher for the past sixty-four years. Now located in Cincinnati, he has been mathematical instructor and has given special instruction in Latin at the Industrial School since its inception twelve years ago.

His residence is now 1117 Yale Ave., Walnut Hills.

He is especially noted in his race as a linguist, reading not only Latin but Greek, French, Spanish, and German. Blackburn is superintendent of the Bethel Baptist Church Sunday school and teacher of the summer's vacation transferring a men's Bible class.

His mind is still active, but because of his advanced years, the school made him Teacher Emeritus and placed him on a pension.

Ten times as many men and women are seeking this car as ever before aspired to Paige ownership.

In the first four months of 1926—nearly three times as many Paige cars were built and actually sold as were sold during the entire year 1925. More than ten times as many will be sold during the year.

New thousands see in the latest and finest Paige a sheer downright dollar-for-dollar value without equal elsewhere, and without precedent in automobile history.

An afternoon along Motor Row will definitely show you the reason for this amazing popularity. You simply can't find another car—at anywhere near $1495—that is as beautiful, as carefully built of quality materials, with an engine more modern, more efficient or more economical, with finer or more expensive brakes, or with features of vision, comfort, ease of handling and safety so numerous or so satisfying. See it—drive it—soon!

GAS BUGGIES or HEM AND AMY—Playing For Fortune

WHILE HEM IS OUT IN FRONT GRABBING THE SPOTLIGHT OF PUBLICITY AS LEADING MAN IN THE ONE-ACT PLAY, PETRIFIED GAS, ALEC SMART AND HIS ABLE ASSISTANT, MR. COLDGRIP, ARE SILENTLY OCCUPIED COUNTING THE CASH IN THE DEEP SHADOWS BEHIND THE SCENES.

WELL, COLDGRIP, IT'S COMING PRETTY EASY, EH? IF WE CAN JUST STALL HEM OFF A LITTLE LONGER, WE'LL HAVE A COOL $100,000 TUCKED AWAY—THE LAST TIME HE WAS IN ABOUT HIS FRIEND PLOP'S DIVIDENDS I GAVE HIM THE OLD RACKET ABOUT THE FACTORY NOT BEING READY TO PRODUCE YET—HE SWALLOWED IT IN ONE GULP AND WENT OUT WHISTLING LIKE A CALLIOPE—SOMETIMES WHEN I LOOK AT HEM I FEEL LIKE A FATHER HIDING THE CAKE FROM HIS KID—

ISN'T THAT A NEAT WAD, ALEC?—I LIKE TO PACK UP THE $100,000 BABIES—THEY'RE CLEANER N' THE SMALL STUFF AND THERE'S NOT MANY WRINKLES TO BE SMOOTHED OUT. WELL! WHOEVER CHIPPED THOSE INTO THE POT NEEDN'T WORRY—WE'LL TAKE GOOD CARE ON 'EM—

THE MORE I THINK ABOUT IT, THE MORE I FEEL LIKE FISHING AROUND AND SEEING IF WE CAN'T GET AN OFFER FROM ANOTHER BIG GAS COMPANY—GLOBES WASN'T TO BE SNEEZED AT, BUT I'VE A HUNCH WE CAN GET THOSE EGGS BIDDING AGAINST EACH OTHER IF WE WORK IT RIGHT—WE MIGHT AS WELL WALK OUT OF TOWN WITH TWO GRIPS FULL OF DOUGH, AS ONE—

LET'S HAVE A GAME WHILE WE TALK IT OVER! ONE CERTAIN—WE NEED A BIGGER SAFE—

WE DON'T WANT TOO MANY IRONS IN THE FIRE—IT'LL KEEP US STEPPING TO SAVE OUR CORNS IF WE GET MANY MORE HOUNDS ON OUR TRAIL—THOSE BIG BOYS ARE SMARTER THAN THE SMALL FRY—WELL, COME ON—WHY DON'T YOU RAISE ME! MAKE IT TWO CENTS—I DARE YUH!!

NOTHIN' DOIN'—PENNY A POINT IS ENOUGH FOR ME—YOU DON'T CATCH ME LOSING MY HEAD WITH TWENTY CENTS IN THE KITTY—!!
